The net paid circulation of the Chicago American is now above 400,000.

This interests newspaper publishers all over the United States. For the Chicago American, an evening newspaper that sells for 3 cents, has about ten times the circulation of one of its competitors, and about four times the circulation of another competitor. It still needs four or five thousand circulation in order to pass Mr. Victor Lawson's excellent Daily News, which sells at 2 cents against the Chicago American's 3-cent price.

Presently the Chicago American will accumulate the necessary four or five thousand to pass the News at 2 cents, then fifty or a hundred thousand more. It will demonstrate that in the Chicago evening field it can do what the New York Sunday American has done on Sunday, selling more than 1,100,000 at 10 cents a copy while all its Sunday competitors in New York sell at 5 cents a copy—half the price, and not one managing to get more than about half the circulation.

Such facts are intensely interesting to publishers.

Other readers less interested than publishers in the huge cost of white paper, are interested in these figures:

Roast loin of pork sells for 18 cents retail in Chicago.

Milk sells for 12 cents in Minneapolis.

Texas crude oil has dropped off 25 cents a barrel.

Eggs continue their downward journey.

The United States government paid $336.74 a set for double harness in the war. That price will amuse the farmers. The government is selling new double harness NOW at $14 a set, and damaged harness as low as $1.40. There is a saying, "Anybody can cut shoe strings out of another man's leather." The "business men" of this government managed to cut shoe strings out of the public pocket.

Farmers who read these figures and remember that the government fined the price of wheat at $3.25, will not wonder, remembering that there was graft in harness, not in wheat.

The Senate Naval Committee recommends for this country a navy equal to that of any other power. It is a moderate demand, considering that the combined navies of England and Japan are made into one by a strong treaty.

It is true that the Japanese-English treaty says that if Japan fights the United States England need not join in unless she wants to. But that is rather cold comfort, like saying to your bull dog, "You need not bite that gentleman unless you want to."

Whatever else the United States navy does or is, it should be strongest of ALL navies in flying machines, including hydro-aeroplanes, and in submarines. The flying machines would spy out approaching fleets, or invading armies landed to the north or south, and drop dynamite on them. Flying machines, besides dropping dynamite on an enemy fleet, would direct the submarines by wireless, and the submarines would finish the job.

It is suggested that the value of flying machines against battleships be tested by having flying machines with dynamite attack and destroy an old armor plated ship.

Why waste the metal? Engineers can make the test without sinking a ship and you can make a pretty good test in your own mind.

A first-class battleship costs $40,000,000. For $40,000,000 if you kept away from our admirable "Aircraft Board" you could buy 20,000 dynamite-carrying flying machines.

The battleship moving slowly on the water would be in full sight and an excellent target. The flying machines far up, going more than a hundred miles an hour, hard to hit, small and hard to see, and representing no great loss if they are hit, would keep up a dynamite rain.

What chance do you think the battleship would have? Would you rather be a man on that one battleship with twenty thousand flying machines attacking you—or even one thousand flying machines—or one of the men up in the air?

By all means build great battleships, perhaps they are not entirely out of date, even though they did keep them hidden away through the war.

BUT build flying machines and submarines and train crews for both, including especially, aerial marksmen.

Also try to make them partially self-supporting in peace, the flying machines, carrying fast mail and passengers and looking out for forest fires, the submarines, exploring the bottom of the waters for oil, minerals and other wealth.

McMasters Says Leveroni Told of Scheme to Place Italian Funds With Ponzi

Attorney-General Allen, District Attorney Pelletier and William H. McMasters were witnesses today in the latter's suit against Charles Ponzi to recover $5,000 alleged to be due as salary for McMasters' services as the financial "wizard's" press agent.

United States District Attorney Gelingher also was summoned to testify today.

The high lights of today's testimony came from McMasters, when he declared that following a conference at Ponzi's Lexington house last July Judge Frank Leveroni had told him Ponzi was considering going into the moving picture business, and also that he, Leveroni, as counsel for the Italian branch of the Old Colony Trust Company, intended asking the directors of that institution to accept a large deposit of funds from Ponzi.

When Joseph Lundy, counsel for McMasters, called Attorney-General Allen to the stand, Attorney Hugh W. Ogden, counsel for the Ponzi receivers, objected and said he was willing to admit that Ponzi and McMasters had gone to the offices of Mr. Allen. Mr. Pelletier and

PICKED UP 600 MILES EAST OF HALIFAX

Officers and Crew of Sinking Bombardier Saved by Steamship Mount Clay

Rescue at sea about 600 miles off Halifax of the officers and crew of the sinking Belgian steamship Bombardier, New York for Antwerp, by the United States Shipping Board steamship Mount Clay, was told in radio messages to the naval station at Otter Cliffs, Me., today and relayed to the Boston Navy Yard.

"Two lifeboats adrift," the radio added.

The Bombardier, in distress, began sending S. O. S. messages broadcast two days ago. The Mount Clay and several other steamships responded. Apparently the Mount Clay was the first to reach the side of the sinking vessel.

Meanwhile the officers and crew of the sinking vessel had taken to the life boats and were standing near their disabled ship, which was likely to go down at any minute.

Radiograms to Otter Cliffs from the steamship Adriatic told of the rescue of the men in the lifeboats, which occurred at daylight this morning. The message read:

S. S. Bombardier sinking. Lat. 43.53 North; Lat. 54.19 West. Crew rescued at daylight February 10 by S. S. Mount Clay. Ship will float few hours yet. Two lifeboats adrift.

WOODS ARE SCOURED BY ARMED CITIZENS

Repeated Attacks on Braintree and Weymouth Girls Stir Residents to Action

Stung to determined action by the brutal assault on Miss Marion West of East Braintree, the men of East Braintree and Weymouth are arming themselves and preparing to hunt down the mysterious individual who for several months has been terrorizing the women of the district.

Police declared today there was no doubt the man who attacked Miss West was the same man who within six months made similar attacks on a half-dozen young women in the two towns.

Miss West, eighteen years old, was rapidly recovering today from the effects of the attack and was able to give a good description of the man who made it.

The attack was made in a wooded footpath behind the Abraham Lincoln School, much used by those on the way to the railroad station. She was able to beat her assailant off and escape.

Four weeks ago a man answering the description of Miss West's assailant attempted to attack Miss Thelma Christiansen of May street at exactly the same spot at which the attempt was made on the West girl.

He used the same method, trying to trip her up. The man wore an army shirt and a conventional blue serge suit, neatly pressed.

Three weeks ago a man answering

WIFE OF J. R. PETERS SUICIDE IN NEW YORK

Woman Well Known in Boston Society Driven to Death by Illness

News was received here today that Mrs. Marion Peters, wife of Joseph R. Peters, vice-president of the Fairbanks Company, Eastern selling agents for the Fairbanks-Morse Company, committed suicide by leaping from an eighth-floor window of a New York apartment house.

Mrs. Peters was well known in social circles of Boston, having been a frequent visitor here with her husband. She was staying at the fashionable Belmont apartment house.

Apparently in possession of her faculties, Mrs. Peters, who had been suffering from grip and nervous prostration, asked her nurse, Miss Etta J. Davenport, to tell her husband she would like to bid him good night.

The nurse left to deliver the message and when she returned she found the room empty and the window curtains flapping in the breeze. Miss Davenport ran to the window and saw Mrs. Peters' body in the courtyard.

A mechanic, who had been in the courtyard when Mrs. Peters leaped from her window, was bending over her. He hurriedly called a physician, who said that every bone in Mrs. Peters' body had been broken by her fall and that death had been instantaneous.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, assistant coroner, said the case was clearly one of suicide. The coroner is assisted by his wife's death. There is one child, Irene, ten years old.

Mrs. Peters was thirty-two years old.

WARMER, WITH RAIN, IS PREDICTED TOMORROW

With unseasonably warm weather Sunday, not only in Boston, but all over the country, still higher temperatures are predicted for Boston tomorrow, with rains probably tonight and Friday.

Increasing easterly winds are expected to shift to westerly tomorrow. The expected rains are advancing on Boston from the Middle States. Heavy rains have been falling in the South, especially at Montgomery, Ala., where the total was 1.64 inches. The coldest report in the United States today was Williston, N. D., at 14 degrees, the warmest, Key West, Fla., at 74. Extremes in New England were 32 at Burlington, Vt., and Greenville, Me., and 34 at Hartford, Ct. Boston's coldest temperature of the night was 32 at 6 a. m., mounting to 38 by 10 a. m.

Auto Thieves Take Safe Away in Somerville

Burglars carried away a small safe from the Ava Lou Laboratory Company, No. 160 Middlesex avenue, Somerville, sometime during the night, according to a report made to the Somerville police.

Entrance was gained to the building by jimmying a side window and lifting the safe out.

The safe was about two and a half feet square, and contained personal papers, an alcohol permit and 300 pennies. An automobile was seen in an alley near the building around midnight and the police believe that it was used to haul the safe away.

Monday night thieves attempted to break and enter the creamery of J. M. Hagar & Son on Mystic avenue, a short distance from the scene of the safe robbery.

Three men were engaged in this attempted break and tried to force open the windows and doors, but were frightened away by a passing automobile.

3 Lynn Boys Spanked By Order of Judge

Three Lynn youngsters today are ruefully rubbing a certain portion of their anatomy and taking solemn pledges never more to stray from the narrow path of rectitude.

Three Lynn parents are wondering why they had neglected so long to apply Solomon's advice to the same youngsters.

Judge Ralph W. Reeves of the Lynn court is being congratulated by his fellow citizens for his common sense.

The story is simple. Francis Deveraux, thirteen years old, of Federal street, Demosthenes Agganis, nine years old, of Waterhill street, and Amelio Decicco, thirteen years old, of Woodman street, appeared before the judge, charged with robbing a grocery store. The judge listened, considered and ordered a good spanking for each youngster. They got it last night.

GIBBONEY QUITS HARVARD TO SEEK FATHER

Son of Bergdoll's Counsel, Trying to Get Into Mexico to Hunt Body

D. Clarence Gibboney, Jr., son of the attorney for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the wealthy draft dodger, who escaped from Germany, has withdrawn from the Harvard Law School in order to make an effort to gain possession of the body of his father, who, it is claimed, was drowned near Campeche, Mex., some months ago.

Gibboney has been living in Cambridge with his mother, and scoffed at all reports that his father had not been drowned, but was in hiding. The communication informing of his father's death came to Cambridge.

Soon afterwards he packed up his books and returned to Philadelphia. Since that time he has besieged the State Department officers at Washington for permission to cross the border and recover the body of his father.

He even went as far as to try and enlist the services of President Wilson, but Joseph Tumulty, his secretary, stated that dealings with Mexico would be unnecessarily long on account of the red tape involved.

The Gibboneys have been notified that a gold watch was found on his father, but nothing has been said as to the $1,500 he carried when he left Philadelphia.

Mrs. Gibboney wished the body of her husband disinterred and taken to Philadelphia. The Mexican government has a law which prohibits disinterment for a period of five years. Hence the further activities of the family to make certain of the finish.

United States Attorney Gallagher, if by so doing he could save those officials the annoyance of testifying at this trial.

ALLEN TELLS OF VISIT.

Lundy, however, declared he had called the Attorney-General for a specific purpose and Allen was sworn as a witness.

His testimony was brief and to the effect that last July Ponzi and McMasters had called at his office in the State House.

"Was that the first time you had seen Mr. Ponzi?" asked Lundy.

"Yes," replied the witness.

Mr. Pelletier's testimony was virtually the same. He told of having summoned Mr. Ponzi to a conference and that the latter when he arrived was accompanied by McMasters, who advised the "wizard" to be perfectly frank in his replies to the district attorney's questions.

"During the conversation," said Mr. Pelletier, "it was suggested to Mr. Ponzi that he discontinue taking money from the public. He said that he might do so after the next meeting. Mr. McMasters thereupon said, 'Why don't you stop it tonight?'

"As a result of this conference did Ponzi cease taking money that night?" asked Lundy.

"I believe he did," said Pelletier.

Mr. Pelletier's testimony also brought out the fact that McMasters is an attorney, though never admitted to the Boston bar.

McMasters took the stand after the District Attorney finished, and said that he had taken a degree in law from the Boston University, but had never practiced.

Questioned by Mr. Lundy, McMasters told in detail of a conference he had had with Ponzi in the latter's Lexington home last July, at which Judge Leveroni and a man named Lamb, a Ponzi agent at Lowell, were present.

"At that time Mr. Ponzi introduced me to Mr. Lamb as his press agent, and Lamb commented upon some of the published accounts of the Ponzi operations," said the witness.

It was after this conference that the conversation between Leveroni and McMasters took place, according to the testimony of the latter.

Judge Leveroni told him, said McMasters, that if Ponzi continues to be successful he plans to open a string of banks all over the country and also to finance a moving picture company."

Marshall Makes 3 March 4 Vows

Washington, Feb. 16.—Thomas R. Marshall proposes to do three things after March 4, when his eight years as vice-president of the United States are brought to a close. In their chronological order, he said today, they are:

First—Quit politics for good.

Second—Make some money.

Third—Tour Europe.

"The first two, Mr. Marshall intimated, are but a means to an end—the trip to Europe.

"I'm going to Europe in self-defense," he asserted. "For years I have been horrifying my friends by admitting I have never been abroad. I've seen ladies who were never west of Chicago break out in a cold, clammy sweat when I said I've never been to Europe. I've simply got to go."

RECEIVERS SUE THREE PONZI AGENTS

Bring Action to Recover $81,281 in 251 Commissions Paid by Swindler Before Crash

The Ponzi receivers today brought suit in United States Court to recover $81,281 paid by the get-rich-quick promoter to three of his agents before he was petitioned into bankruptcy.

This was taken as a sign that ultimately all the Ponzi agents would be brought into court in an effort to make them return their "commissions" for the benefit of the Ponzi victims.

The three agents mentioned in the suit filed today are: Henry Th. Nielsen, Boston; Louis Rosso Cassella, Winthrop; and Robert de Nasilla, Lynnfield Centre.

The receivers, James A. Lowell, William H. Sears and Edward A. Thurston, ask that special masters be appointed in each case, to take charge of property of the Ponzi agents.

The boy was crossing Washington street at Orchard, when the machine struck him. He was rushed to the Addison Gilbert Hospital, where twenty-four stitches were taken in his head. The boy is expected to recover.

ARMED CITIZENS HUNT GIRL'S ASSAILANT

Series of Attacks on Weymouth and Braintree Women Stir Towns to Action

the same description tried to attack Mrs. Clara Drake, twenty years old, in the woods near Newton square, East Braintree.

GIRL TELLS OF BATTLE.

He asked her the way to Howard street, on which both Miss West and Miss Christensen live, and walked along with her on the pretense that he was absorbing the information she gave him.

Suddenly he tried to throw her down, but she saw him put his foot in front of her, dodged it, and ran home.

Propped up on pillows, Miss West today told her story of the attack. She said the man came from behind a clump of bushes and walked after her. She tried to run, but he caught up with her.

"He tripped me with his hands," the girl added, "and threw me on the ground. He beat me about the head and breast, while I fought him and screamed. I beat him off and, getting to my feet, ran home."

Within two weeks, it is known, a girl whose name the Weymouth police have not given out was similarly attacked.

MAN FRIGHTENED AWAY.

Several months ago the parents of young girls were alarmed at the frequent appearances of the "attacker." He brutally attacked little six-year-old Ethel Evans, also of East Braintree, within a hundred feet of her home, in broad daylight.

Ethel was returning from an errand at the corner store when the man asked her if she wanted some candy. When the child replied in the affirmative, the man grabbed her and carried her to the woods in the rear of the Evans home. Brothers of the child heard her screams a few minutes later and found her nearly unconscious.

Five-year-old Eleanor Dwyer was another child attacked by the man. Eleanor, who lives in South Weymouth, a short distance from Braintree, was playing in front of her home when she was accosted by the man. She was carried to a wooded section nearby, but the mother had heard the screams of the little girl and gave chase. Finally the man dropped the girl and disappeared.

ASSAILANT STILL AT LARGE.

Enrigid Linkkohen, then about eighteen years old, was also attacked by a man who met her as she was returning from blueberrying. The brother of the girl drove her assailant away by throwing stones at him.

No one has ever been sentenced for the attacks in the South Shore section. At one time there was such pressure last year, but the attacks ceased and fathers and mothers of children are afraid to talk for fear of arming the criminal.

Miss West describes her assailant as being about five feet, six or eight inches tall, wearing a blue suit, about twenty-two or three years old, thin set and wearing a mixed gray cap and army shirt.

The description is nearly identical with the one given by the other girls attacked several months ago.

BARONESS HYSTERICAL WHEN ARRESTED

followed the purchase of a $600 fur coat in a downtown department store, for which it is alleged she tried to pay with a worthless check.

This purchase was made yesterday afternoon. She left her old coat and wore the new one away. Store detectives followed her to the street and, on instructions, tried to take the coat from her, but she cried out that she was being insulted, and a chivalrous taxicab driver took her to her apartment.

Several hours later she was arrested by Inspector John W. McCarthy and Joseph Kane.

She became hysterical immediately and it was necessary to carry her most of the way to headquarters.

Her struggles were so strenuous that she tore a gold bracelet off her wrist. When it was restored to her she quieted for a time, but soon became violent again. It was intimated she might be sent to the Psychopathic Hospital.

Baroness von David was in court in 1919 charged with passing worthless checks.

She married the German baron several years ago, while she was a student at the New England Conservatory of Music. The marriage followed a four-day courtship.

She is twenty-seven years old.

Connecticut Boasts Youngest 'Vet's' Son

Packerville, Ct., Feb. 16.—Clarence Weeks, three years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Weeks of this village, can lay claim to being the youngest child of a Civil War veteran in America.

To be sure Clarence does not manifest much interest in the matter at the present time, but his father, who is ninety years old and still hale, is quite proud, and makes the contention in boasting fashion.

In point of years, Mr. Weeks is still a child as compared to a number of others, notably "Uncle John" Shell, Kentucky mountaineer, who is 121 years old, has twenty-nine children, the oldest of whom is ninety, and became father of a boy when he was 114 years old. Shell was not a participant in the Civil War, however.

BLACK HAND FIGURES IN DUELISTS' TRIAL

Lawrence, Feb. 10.—A hearing in the case of the revolver duelists, one of whom, Angelo Kaia, was charged with assault with intent to murder, and the other, Angelo Catanzo, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, revealed that Black Hand agents may have some connection with the case. Kaia, in whose house the shooting took place, following a card game, shot the other defendant in the neck, inflicting a slight wound, it is said. Catanzo claimed that he was the victim of a Black Hand ring. Evidence in the case revealed that a shot had been fired through one of the windows of the house by a third man.

JAPANESE BARRED FROM LOS ANGELES GOLF LINKS

Los Angeles, Feb. 10.—Japanese and all other aliens who are not eligible to citizenship will be excluded from the municipal golf links at Griffith Park under the provisions of an ordinance adopted by unanimous vote under suspension of rules by the City Council today.

The nine little orb rests next booth to the nine little nursery rests, and the nice little baby, not the fair sex, is being correctly bathed by his public health nurse, while music, furnished by the High School Boys' orchestra of Boston booms bravely on and mother, in a lecture hall, a little remote, finds out just what to do for herself and her child, aged anywhere from one day on and up.

This is the story, and these a few of the features of Child Health Week, at Paul Revere Hall. Mothers come and are and admire; and children come and watch and admire, too. And they all learn something.

For instance. You should just drop in on the district nurse, in her booth. She has a sample bed, all made up, to take care of the chronic sick, or the mother or the baby. You see there just how to protect the bed; how to make absorbent bed pads; how to fold the corner sheets right.

Then you find a nice, sensible little book where the woman who needs a clinic for herself or her child, will learn which one she should go to and when. Also, do you want to know what sort of books to read, to bring up your youngster right?

Well, if you do, just go and see Mrs. Milton J. Rosen. She has a collection of books for parents; and a collection of books for children, and when you have read, you'll know, that's all. Then the Library Extension service is at Paul Revere Hall today. And they have books in twenty-three languages. So, Mrs. Mother, you're not excused, just because you can't read English. You are supposed to know, just the same. The library provides things for you. Go to the Library Extension Exhibition and find out, this very week.

If your child is poorly nourished—you can find out why at Paul Revere Hall this week. Also how much that child should eat and sleep and play and work. And what you yourself should do to bring the little fellow there right, in the first place.

In the meantime Dr. Lily Owen Hurbank extends, on behalf of the Women's City Federation, thanks to Henry Hunt Clark of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The students of this school, without a penny of recompense, have decorated with their pastels, originally composed, the whole exhibition. "Ask the Nurse—She Knows," is the first parol, at the entrance. And, on, where mother takes care of baby, and the youngster grows in health and wisdom, the story is traced, by lovers of children, to the end that the city's resources may be enlisted for the city's children.

MOTHER OF GIRL KIDNAPED FROM SCHOOL SOUGHT

Private Detectives Hunt for Divorced Woman in Lynn and Fitchburg

The Lynn police today were seeking the mother of seven-year-old Elisabeth Hanscom, the child kidnaped from the Lincy street school in Nashua, N. H., by two women.

Mrs. Hanscom, formerly an actress, who lost the custody of her daughter four years ago by a court order following a divorce is said to be employed in a Lynn shoe factory at the present time.

Private detectives also attended the search in Fitchburg, former home of Mrs. Hanson, in the belief that she might have gone there.

The little girl, who had been turned over to her aunt, Mrs. Homer E. Hodlin of No. 3 College street, Nashua, was taken from the school in the morning.

A short time later the little girl was seen in the company of two women, at the railroad station, where they inquired regarding an electric car to Pelham and trains to Boston.

Four years ago the child's parents were divorced and both left Nashua when the little girl was given into the custody of her father's sister.

6 VETERANS APPOINTED TO FIRE DEPARTMENT

Mayor Peters has appointed six World War veterans as probationary members of the fire department at $1,400 a year, their uniforms to be furnished by the city. They are: Reginald E. Courage, Confidence and Bigger Business for 1921

WILLIAM MULDOON was champion wrestler of the world for many years. He's a rough, gruff individual who is short on words, but long on action.

A business man, who went to him to get the kinks out of his nervous system, told the other day of his experience:

"The first morning after I landed, Muldoon put me through a terrific pace. Weakened and exhausted, feeling that I couldn't go another minute, I was sent for my bath. Later in the day I remarked to Mr. Muldoon that he had put me through a pretty hard pace. His only reply was: 'Rot! You were not doing 80% of what you were capable.' I thought at the time that Muldoon didn't know what he was talking about. But at the end of two weeks I knew that Muldoon was right. The exercises took on strength and developed my power of endurance that the original work seemed like child's play."

We all need to be imbued with the Muldoon idea. Man usually exercises 80% of his faculties—or less.

Business conditions are not normal. But that doesn't mean that people are going to stop living and laughing and spending, even for luxuries. America has had several years of unprecedented prosperity. It is the richest nation in the world with the smallest debt. It is having a little reaction.

Merchants and manufacturers who fail to double their energy, enlarge their advertising, increase their enthusiasm, and by their will to succeed overcome obstacles in 1921, are trifling with Opportunity.

True, the readjustment period will cramp some concerns; others it will crush. Failure faces those who lose courage and confidence.

We have only to practice as well as preach the Muldoon gospel of 100% of what we are capable. Set our hearts and our hands to the task before us. We must urge our brain and our bones to 100% effort during the coming year. We must get our hearts and souls so full of the business possibilities which are rightfully ours that our confidence in ourselves will send business forging ahead.

"SUCCESS GRAVITATES TO THE MAN WHO CAN SHOULDER IT; POWER FLOWS TO THE MAN WHO KNOWS HOW." Muldoon is right.

The man who puts forth the last 20% of whether in physical or business accomplishment.

"And how are we to gain this 20 per cent.?" is asked.

To the merchant and manufacturer there is only one broad highway. It is advertising. "HIS ADVERTISING IS NOT A THING APART FROM HIS ENTERPRISE. IT IS HIS ENTERPRISE, A CONTAGION WHICH HE HIMSELF CREATES, AND WHICH, IF THOROUGHLY SPREAD, IS AS ENDURING AS THE EVERLASTING HILLS."

Advertising helped to win the war. Advertising enabled in the consciousness of our country a desire not only to dare but to DO. Advertising sold billions of dollars' worth of Liberty Bonds. It did this when business conditions were unsettled and the outcome was only a prayerful hope. Now, if we are to prove that "peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," we should apply the great lesson learned by utilizing this mightiest of modern commercial forces to stabilize and revitalize business in our city, our State and our country.

Advertising is not meant reckless expenditure in this, that or the other form of publicity. By advertising is meant an intelligent, consistent effort to reach the greatest number of homes. Make your programme definite; your performance consistent, and your appeal to the public when without careful preparation, without a plan.

All signs point to a decrease in operating expenses and cost of living. All business concerns must look to increased sales, smaller profits, quicker returns to make up for decreased prices.

To get the benefit of the tremendous fall in prices that has already occurred, all readers, all consumers, should read the advertisements.

The merchants and manufacturers who are doing most for their country and for themselves in these trying days are those who seek the largest possible volume of business, on the smallest basis of profit, rather than those who seek also a large profit on a small business.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE GREATEST SUCCESSES ARE LAID NOT IN DAYS OF UNIVERSAL PROSPERITY, WHEN ANYBODY CAN SUCCEED, BUT ALWAYS IN DAYS OF UNCERTAINTY AND DIFFICULTY WHEN FAITH, COURAGE AND ENTERPRISE ARE REQUIRED.

A learned man said: "The only difference between the possible and the impossible is that it takes a little longer to accomplish the latter."

This, then, is the time to think and work for bigger and better things.

A 100 per cent. success will come only to those who use the last twenty per cent. of their ability and opportunity.

At the present time this newspaper, aided by the leading Advertising Agencies, Hearst Publications, and several hundred other newspapers, is conducting a local and a nationwide editorial advertising campaign to show the public the advantages of reading advertising closely and constantly.

This campaign will not only stabilize business conditions, but will also revitalize sales for merchants and manufacturers who are quick to take advantage of this constructive work.

EUROPE CONTENT WITH FORM OF DEBT TO U. S., SAYS HAPGOOD

WANT PACT TO STAND AS IT IS

Says Congress Is in Danger of Losing the Main Point Regarding the Debt

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
Editorial Correspondent for the Boston American.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The whole point in the present situation regarding Europe's indebtedness to us is in danger of being lost sight of in the excited attacks made in the House and Senate on further payments from our treasury in pursuance to agreements with our late allies. Great Britain, France and our other creditors are under obligation of a gentlemen's agreement to change the present form of the indebtedness into a form that would make the debt safer.

Norman Hapgood

They do not want to make that change, and are holding off in the hope of reaching some kind of a diminution or modification of their liabilities.

At present the debts are in the form of demand obligations supplemented by informal understandings. As long as that form continues there is no basis for argument, for negotiation. If we have not done something that we have promised to do there is ground for arguing that the agreements have not been completed and that in fairness the whole set of understandings ought to be gone over and revised in the light of all the circumstances.

What Foreign Powers Are Working for

The case of the American government is that Europe is obligated in the full extent of the nine and a half billion dollars which is the total of the loans. In order to make these obligations into proper shape it has pushed to get the formal part of the agreements out of the way by executing them.

It was understood that interest was to be deferred for three years, or about one year from now. This interest at five per cent was not to be cancelled but merely added to the principal until 1923.

The first payment of interest would carry with it an additional one per cent, towards payment of the deferred fifteen per cent, the second year there would be a somewhat larger payment, and so on.

Bonds would be issued for the whole, payable at set dates, much in the nature of our Liberty Bonds. This date would be 1933 in the case of seven and a half billion of the indebtedness, a few years later in the case of the two billion loaned servier.

As to Our Part of the Obligation

It is against this reduction of the debt to a more definite form that the foreign governments have been working, in the hope that before such final form was taken, evidently settling the arrangement permanently, they would bring about some modification of the amount due.

The attacks made on the Treasury policy by members of the Senate Judiciary Committee and others are to do not with the credits, but with about $75,000,000 already due as part of these original agreements. The argument in favor of carrying out our share of the understanding is not merely a moral one. It is also practical.

If we are in a position in which we have to hold the representatives of Europe and their people to their agreement about the safeguarding and ultimate paying of so many billions, what kind of a position will it be for us to destroy the force of all these collateral agreements by ourselves being the first to break our promises? All questions of honesty apart, it is a question of millions against billions.

Declared Loans Would Never Be Paid.

It must be remembered that these loans are not like ordinary debts, fairly sure of collection. Very prominent men in Wall Street have said privately within a few days that in their opinion the loans would never be paid.

The more a person knows about the condition of Europe the more he realizes how ticklish the whole matter is. Statesmen on the Hill therefore ought to take an interest not only in the fragmentary part of the agreements represented by the millions still due from us but in the questions that affected the safety of the whole investment and that are inseparably bound with our understanding of our side of the contracts.

I have known about the foreign loan psychology since the Fall of 1918. Before the end of that year the French had made it very clear to our representatives in Paris that they did not think they ought to pay their indebtedness.

Hub Woman's Reading House Looted by Instalments

Mrs. L. F. Foote, Beacon street, Boston, and scene showing how house she controls at Reading was looted.

The thieves who looted the Summer cottage in Reading belonging to Mrs. L. F. Foote of No. 356 Beacon street, Boston, were not the first to ransack the place, declared Mrs. Foote today.

Ever since the death of her sister, Miss Florence Cowan, formerly of Brookline, Mrs. Foote has been in charge of the Reading property, and from time to time has noted the installment plan depredations of robbers.

Carpets, curtains, pictures and even articles of furniture have been missed from the cottage from time to time, she said.

The Reading police have been notified and have made several attempts to catch the looters, but in vain, until yesterday, when they arrested George Foley of West street, Reading, after an exciting chase and a desperate pistol battle with Foley and two companions, who escaped into a dense woods near the house.

Before the interference of the police the thieves had removed most of the furniture left in the house, including a grand piano, which they had loaded upon a large motor moving van.

When Foley was arraigned in Woburn Court he is alleged to have named William O'Connor, a stepson of George O. Rogers of Libby avenue, as one of his partners in the break.

Authorities in surrounding cities and towns have been notified by the Reading police to be on the lookout for O'Connor. The moving van is alleged to be the property of Rogers.

BRITAIN OFFERS TO SCRAP NEW WAR FLEET

Would End Navy Program on Which $500,000,000 Has Already Been Spent

Washington, Feb. 10.—Great Britain made a formal proposal that the United States discontinue all capital ship construction contained in its great 1916 naval program, including ten giant superdreadnoughts and six battle cruisers, it was learned from a high official source.

This amazing proposition was made during the peace conference at Versailles. It is about to be repeated by Sir Auckland Geddes when he returns to the United States to discuss disarmament, according to information that has reached high officials of this government.

"Whatever else may be contained in Great Britain's proposal this will be the fundamental principle involved. She has never deviated one hair's breadth from her plan first revealed at Versailles," said the Universal Service authority.

"Approximately $400,000,000 has been expended on the 1916 building program to date, and it will require only $400,000,000 to complete it.

"It is our understanding of the proposition that Great Britain offers to destroy $500,000,000 of her naval construction to offset the potential naval power sacrificed by the United States.

"The ships we are asked to sacrifice are the most powerful in the world. Their completion will themselves the greatest fighting force yet planned by any nation.

"Great Britain has nothing to compare with them. The ships she is willing to sacrifice are of types infinitely inferior, and would not weaken her naval strength to any material degree."

Proportional Disarmament Plan Demanded by Harding

Washington, Feb. 10.—Proportional disarmament on a basis of equality on the seas as between the United States and Great Britain will be the plan insisted upon by President-elect Harding in the international conference he will call shortly after his inauguration, it was learned today.

This was the distinct impression given by the speech of Senator Lenroot in the Senate and House recently called to Marion to confer with him on that subject. He made it plain that conferences initiating negotiations for disarmament will be one of the very first important acts of his administration.

50 DRIVEN OUT, WOMEN SAVED IN SALEM FIRE

Mayor Sullivan Leads Rescue Work After General Alarm Is Sounded

Fifty lodgers were forced to flee scantily clad, several women were rescued and a fireman was overcome by smoke when flames swept through the four-story wooden building at Nos. 23-25 Federal street, Salem, early today.

A general alarm was sounded for the fire, which spread rapidly and owing to delay in stying it with streams of water, imperiled the business district nearby.

Mayor Sullivan took active part in the rescue work, directing the tenants to another lodging house across the street where they obtained shelter.

Fireman Everett Sanborn, while searching the rooms on the top floor for more who might have been trapped in the building, was overcome by smoke and rescued by fellow firemen. He was removed to the street where he was revived.

Miss Cora Betts, twenty-three years old, while the fire was raging at its height, crept out on the window ledge and came down the under side of a ladder which had been placed at the window by the firemen. The girl stood on the face of clouds of smoke which enveloped her at times.

Mrs. Horace Reed, a tenant, also made her way down the ladder.

The fire started on the second floor in the rear, and when discovered by one of the lodgers, had gained considerable headway. Most of the roomers were asleep in their rooms when the alarm of fire was given.

The halls quickly filled with smoke and the terrified lodgers made their way to the street with difficulty. Most of them were too frightened to stop for valuables or extra clothing. A few wrapped bathrobes about them, but the majority fled from the house in their night clothing.

The fire is said to have started on the first floor from one cigar to another and shortly after the arrival of the first apparatus the entire interior of the structure was a flaming mass. Fearing that the flames would spread to the nearby business district, a call was sent in a general alarm.

With the aid of additional men and apparatus the fire was finally brought under control after a twenty-four hour battle before anything of value had been burned out of the building. What furniture and fixtures that were not totally consumed by fire were so damaged by water that they are worthless.

Mystery Girl Is Arraigned in Cambridge Theft

Mrs. Ruth Pender, the twenty-two year old girl of mystery, arrested in Hartford and turned over to the Cambridge police, who are investigating the theory that she disposed of furs and gems stolen by a "gentleman" burglar from several fashionable apartment houses in Cambridge. In court today she denied any connection with the thefts and repeated her story of meeting an affable young man on a train from New York and agreeing to sell some furs for him.

Ruth Pendir, twenty-two-year-old mystery girl, believed to be the accomplice of a "gentleman burglar," who arrested in Cambridge court today, charged with the larceny of valuable furs from the apartment of Mrs. L. M. Bickford, Hampstead Hall, No. 926 Charles River road, Cambridge.

The young woman, who at first denied any guilt in the robbery in question, but later admitted having received stolen goods and tried to sell them, was arrested in Hartford, Ct., while trying to dispose of the furs.

Learning of her arrest, the Cambridge police sent Sergeant Preshe to Hartford, and he took her back to Cambridge, where she was charged with breaking and entering, as well as larceny. Unable to furnish the $5,000 bail demanded, the woman spent the night in the women's detention room of the Brattle square station.

The Hartford police said the woman claimed to live at No. 114 First street, Elizabeth, N. J., and that her husband was employed in a Staten Island shipyard. The husband told the New Jersey police that he took his wife and six-year-old child to the Pennsylvania Central Station in New York nearly two weeks ago and put them on a Boston train.

Questioned by Chief of Police Mc-Bride and Chief Inspector Hurley at Cambridge police headquarters, the woman repeated her original story told when taken into custody at Hartford.

She declared she met an attractive young man on the train who persuaded her to accompany him to dispose of the furs. While she was in the store, while trying on a coat, the man walked side with her child. When she was arrested man and child disappeared.

In Cambridge Court today she pleaded not guilty, and a continuance to next Monday was granted on the request of the police, who was held in $400. The police are anxious to question her regarding other apartment house breaks in Cambridge, including a number that took place last Summer.

'Richest Man in World' Has Rivals Here

Edward J. Meyers, the village blacksmith of Pierce, Neb., who believes himself to be the "richest man in the world," has rivals in Boston.

At least one local man agrees with the blacksmith who says he would not swap with John D. Rockefeller, that "if happiness and money were weighed the blacksmith's fortune would double that of Rockefeller, Astor or Vanderbilt."

Here's the letter in full:

"It is not always the cold, hard cash that makes one happy. The first thought of the poor man is that little yellow envelope which he receives Saturday night. It's to pay for food, shelter and rest of all bring happiness to the one he loves at home.

"He is able to share their food and scanty, have enough left over to bring him his slippers and nips and shower him with kisses. Is there any rich man that enjoys and longs for anything that could bring him happiness like this?

"Money is like a false friend, you soon find out that through it you have never a real friend. Money is not worth it.

"While the rich man has found the top of the ladder, there is no step higher and he sits pondering on top. The poor man is still climbing, wondering when the goal will come when he, too, can sit on the top step.

"By far the blacksmith is richer than John D., and if happiness and money were weighed the blacksmith's fortune would double that of John D. Rockefeller, Vanderbilt or Astor.

"A. McC."

Meyers wrote that though he is just a "plug blacksmith" he is rich. "I have health, a wonderful wife, a beautiful daughter and a beautiful little home." "Who could be richer?" he asks.

Ferdinand Wens, of No. 650 Tremont street, this city, thinks pretty much the same way. He says:

"The richest man in the world is the man who has a clear conscience regarding all his acts. Such a one finds his desire for worldly goods diminishing, and is able as he draws near his end to survey his past with quiet and peace of mind. He is willing to disturb those dying moments."

Write your ideas of what goes to make "The richest man in the world" to the "Richest Man Editor" of the Boston American.

MAKES CHILDREN IMMUNE FROM DIPHTHERIA

Dr. Place Urges Parents at Health Exhibit to Have Them Vaccinated

In order to make children immune from diphtheria they should be vaccinated with the known and tested serum for that disease, Dr. Edwin H. Place, of the Boston City Hospital, told a large gathering of mothers and others at the Children's Health Exposition, being held this week in the Mechanics Building.

The display, which is most instructive, is under the auspices of the City Federation of Women's Clubs. Dr. Lily O. Burbank is in charge.

Dr. Place cautioned mothers not to send children to school when they have sore throat. "Call the doctor and show your neighbor's children a little consideration," he advised.

Speaking on "The Mystery of Contagious Diseases," Dr. Place declared:

"The mystery of diphtheria is that while it can be detected and cured, still people die of it. Negligence, carelessness and disregard of others is the cause and the cure is vaccination with anti-toxin."

"Dress In The Relation to Health" was the subject of the conference under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' Association, with Dr. Henry I. Bowditch and Mrs. Dalias Lore Sharpe as the speakers.

"Too small waists, too small chests and too small shoes are bad," said Dr. Bowditch.

BROWN EDITORS FACE STUDENT BODY TRIAL

Cammarian Club Meeting Tomorrow on Their Charges of Girls' Misconduct

Providence, R. I., Feb. 10.—While the Brown Daily Herald asserts editorially that discussion of the alleged unconventional conduct of girls at university functions is at an end, such is far from being the status of the situation which the college publication itself brought about by its "exposure" editorial.

The Cammarian Club, student body governing organization, has yet pronounced its verdict on the college editors, whose charges caused a backfire of angry protests from the girls, their mothers and the students and evoked threats of a ducking.

The Cammarian Club is expected to meet tomorrow night. It would have met yesterday but for the absence of two members still on midyear vacation. They have been telegraphed to return for the meeting at which, it is rumored, retraction of the charges will be demanded, and, perhaps, resignations called for. After the postponed meeting President Ralph Knight refused to discuss either meeting or the situation.

Up on the "Hill" the fraternities, almost to a man, are bitter against the Herald staff and their "uncalled for editorial."

MAY OUST SWISS FROM LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Penalty Suggested for Barring Allied Troops From Crossing Soil

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 10.—Switzerland's refusal to allow allied troops for the Vilna plebescite zone to cross Swiss soil may be punished by the expulsion of Switzerland from the League of Nations, or at least by the removal of the seat of the League of Nations from Geneva, it was learned in authoritative quarters this afternoon.

"Strong action" against Switzerland is under contemplation, and it seems likely that the League of Nations council meeting which will open on February 21 will be held in this city instead of Geneva.

"Doesn't Switzerland's action justify Argentina's decision to quit the League of Nations on account of its restlessness?" asked Former Premier Libre, today.

The Belgian patrol fired upon a crowd of persons in the street, wounding several of them.

WOMAN AID TO SOMERVILLE CITY CLERK

Miss Clara B. Snow First of Sex to Fill That Position

City Clerk Jason M. Carson of Somerville today sprung a surprise on politicians and others in that city, when he appointed a woman to the position of assistant city clerk.

Since Somerville became a city in 1872, the position had always been held by a man.

Miss Clara B. Snow, who was named for the position and sworn in as assistant city clerk, has been connected with the office of the city clerk for a quarter of a century. Since then, she has been the chief clerk in the office.

There were twenty candidates all told for the position, among them being politicians and several veterans of the World War. It was expected that City Clerk Carson would appoint a man. Miss Snow will be present at the meeting of the Somerville board of Aldermen this evening, where she will act as assistant clerk to the board. Miss Snow was born in Somerville, is graduate of the grammar and high schools and makes her home on Sanborn avenue, Somerville.

Miss Snow fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Assistant City Clerk Carson to be city clerk, succeeding Frederic W. Cook, who on January 19 became secretary of the Commonwealth.

U. S. FRIEND OF GERMANY, SAYS VON HINDENBURG

Berlin, Feb. 10.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, leader of the German armies in the World War, claimed today that there was absolutely no change of sentiment on the part of the American people regarding Germany. It is more friendly than formerly, he said. "I have knowledge that American soldiers have written home that we never fought on the wrong side." Von Hindenburg is quoted as saying Boston Typographical Union No. 13 will hold a special meeting Sunday afternoon in Fay Hall No. 1140 Washington street, to take action on a petition for a new wage schedule. The petition is to be submitted to the International Arbitration Board, urging intervention with the Boston Newspaper Publishers' Association, which, the union claims, has unnecessarily delayed negotiations.

REVERE GIRL TO WED DESPITE HER MOTHER

Elizabeth Lowrie to Marry Naval Man at Expiration of Five-Day Limit

Despite the opposition of her mother, who caused the arrest of the couple at a Providence hotel, Miss Elizabeth G. Lowrie, eighteen years old, of No. 258 Beach street, Revere, declares that she intends to wed Albert G. Hesser, twenty-three years old, of the United States navy, with whom she eloped to Providence on Monday.

Securing a marriage license in Providence, they had intended to be married in that city, but were interfered with their plans.

Miss Lowrie was back at her Revere home with the marriage license in her possession. There she will wait, she says, until the five-day limit has expired when she and her intended husband will return to Providence and have the ceremony performed.

Meanwhile Mrs. Mattie Lowrie, her mother, intends to devote all her energies toward making the prospective bride change her mind.

Tearing the couple to a hotel in Providence, where they went to await the expiration of the five-day limit required by law, Mrs. Lowrie had her younger daughter telephone the Providence police that the couple had eloped and asked them to detain the pair.

In consequence the police visited the hotel and put both Hesser and Miss Lowrie under arrest as suspicious persons.

UNITED PRESS IS BLAMED FOR 'WAR' SCARE

British Foreign Office Holds It Solely Responsible for Denied Cable

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 10.—The British Foreign Office officially informed the British press today that the United Press, an American news agency, was solely responsible for the "fake" cablegram which resulted in the Anglo-American war scare. All other news services and newspapers were exonerated.

The Foreign Office issued its statement after the complete text of the dispatches attributed to the United Press had been received here from the British Consulate in New York and carefully studied.

The British press now accepts it as a fact that the "high personage" who gave an audience to the American correspondents at the Foreign Office on Monday was Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States.

Sir Auckland had intended the conference to be the means of promoting closer understanding between the British and American peoples. It was for that reason that he emphasized the fact that the ties between Great Britain and the United States are not only impossible, but also unthinkable.

The London press continued today to devote columns of news and comment to the incident and it was pointed out that the bedrock of the whole affair rests upon the fact that the American news agency mentioned by the Foreign Office had misquoted the British ambassador. There is another unfortunate result in addition to the "unwarranted war scare." The mischievous misquotation of the British diplomat has tended to cast reflection upon the accuracy of the American press.

Headlines upon British editorial comment and news dispatches show the trend of press sentiment. Some of them follow:

"Unwarranted war alarms."—Daily News.

"False report of warning."—The Times.

"A mischievous message."—Daily Telegraph.

"Hysterical pressmen."—Morning Post.

It is intolerable, says the Times that matters of such deep moment should be handled in a way that would allow irresponsible newspapers to misquote and send them.

The Morning Post seems to sound the keynote of general opinion in its comment, saying:

"The proverbial common sense of the British and American people is surely not to be overborne by rubbishy and scare headlines in some newspapers."

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Advertisement.

LYNN CLERGY IN MOVE TO FREE BOY CONVICT

Fighting for Parole for Joey Miller, Serving 10-15 Years for Small Thefts

The people of Essex County are deeply interested in the case of Joseph Roy Miller, nineteen-year-old Lynn boy, who, on January 17, was sentenced to serve from ten to fifteen years in State Prison for a series of night store burglaries in which tobacco, cigarettes and candy were the chief loot.

Five minutes after sentence was passed a prominent Lynn official started a movement for a parole for Miller, who is still guiltless enough to send his mother kisses in the form of a row of tiny crosses at the end of every letter written from Charlestown.

It was this boyish trait, coupled with his age, his candor with the authorities to whom he admitted everything, the nature of his first offence, the fact that he had no lawyer to plead for him, that caused many Lynn ministers to take up his case and caused women to circulate clemency petition.

Rev. Howard B. Smith, pastor of Austin Square Baptist Church is leading the clergy in the fight for Miller. He has made the case his own, summarizes and expects to call a meeting of the local Ministers' Union to help Miller. His counsel-at-law is backing him in the fight for the boy.

PRAISED BY POLICEMEN.

Rev. Mr. Smith, the boy's parents and all identified with the movement for clemency explain that they do not wish to be understood as evidencing or reflecting in the slightest degree on the action of Judge Frederick W. Fredrick, who sentenced him.

Police officials admitted today that they never caught him in a lie. One inspector said:

"He made a clean breast of everything. He never carried a gun or any weapon. He's a queer kid. It seems to be a form of kleptomania in his case. He just steps in, sees things, even in small stores, such as tobacco and cigarettes. In one instance his gang stole some candlesticks, but the loot didn't amount to much.

"But the kid came through from the start. He didn't try to bluff or squeal or balk. He told us the truth. He's as frank as they make 'em. He doesn't look like a burglar. He has a good father and mother, which is the sad part of it."

Miller's home is at No. 44 Essex street. His little mother, with her silver hair parted in the middle and her fine, sad face, looked exactly like that picture of a mother one sees sitting alone by an open fire.

"All my life," she said, "from the time I was a little girl, I had heard about Pomeroy, but little did I dream that I would rear a son to be a prison companion of his. I was stunned when Joey told me he was Pomeroy's mate in the yard for half an hour every afternoon."

LAWYER DEMANDED $50.

"We can't believe that Joey, the baby of the family, is in State Prison with Pomeroy! We haven't played the graphophone since the day they took him to Charlestown. There are two other sons, both married and fine young men. My daughter, Alice, died last June. Joey's father is employed in a cafe.

"But when Joey's case came up my sons were idle because of the shoe strike and money was scarce. I tried to hire a lawyer. He refused to come unless I gave him $50 in cash and I didn't have it. So the judge couldn't get the true story and I was the only one in court with Joey. When I heard the sentence I fell in a dead faint.

"I know they will shorten Joey's sentence. Judge Fredick has shown himself to be a big, manly man. He wrote a lovely letter to pa and I. It was like a benediction.

"I feared evil companions. A half-witted boy threw clay on the sidewalk one day and he was unconscious four hours. I think his head was hurt and that the injury may be responsible. He is easily influenced. He was not the leader. Other boys put Joey up to it. He never brought home anything he stole.

PUTS CROSSES IN LETTERS.

"See, Joey put nineteen crosses at the bottom of his last letter to Pa and me—kisses for us both from the poor child, our baby. He writes that he was pleased to learn efforts would be made to shorten his sentence. He said a man asked him if he would prefer to be at the Reformatory, and Joey, thinking of me more than himself, said it would cost too much for his mother to go to see him at Concord.

He says he is working in the brush shop, and that the officer over him is kind. He adds:

"Ma, we go to bed at nine and get up at seven. I say my prayers every morning when I wake and every evening before I go to bed. I am going to do my best to get out just as quick as possible and get home again. This is the last of my wrong-doing. It's an awful long sentence the other men say, but perhaps it's for the best, Ma. You and Pa do what you can to help me get home, won't you, Ma?"

BAY STATE SITE FOR HOSPITAL IS BEFORE SENATE

Duane, Aided by Walsh and Lodge, Wins Consideration for Massachusetts

Massachusetts is now on the tentative list fo rone of the new United States government hospitals for disabled soldiers authorized by the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill.

When the bill reached the Senate a few days ago, it included a section which specifically excluded New England from consideration as a hospital site.

As a result of the activities of Commander James T. Duane of the Massachusetts State Department of the American Legion and the cooperation of Senators Lodge and Walsh, the situation has changed so that it is not only possible, but also quite probable that one of the hospitals for the care of former service men suffering from mental troubles will be situated in this State.

WALSH AND LODGE HELP.

Commander Duane returned from Washington this morning, where he has been attending the sessions of the national committee of the American Legion the last three days. He praised warmly the efforts of the two United States Senators for their effective work in behalf of the State when he called their attention to the situation and expressed regret that the Massachusetts business and welfare organizations do not keep in closer touch with national legislation.

"When I arrived in Washington I made a survey of the situation to learn how New England would be affected under the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill. It provided for five hospitals, to cost $3,500,000 each, to be located in designated places, with a political commission to pick the sites.

"New England was not one of the designated places. I explained the situation to Senator Lodge and he promised to get busy right away.

"He kept his promise. There was quick evidence of his influence. It was not long before it was known that the committee would propose amendments to wipe out the designation, the cost limit of hospitals and the commission. As it is now there may be ten or twelve hospitals. I saw Senator Walsh soon after I had gone over the matter with the Legion and he helped along the good work of influencing the committee.

RECOMMENDS BAY STATE.

"The number of hospitals is important. It would take eighteen months to erect one like the type to cost $2,500,000. It will take half that time for one of the $1,250,000 type. They will be standardized and have 1,000 beds.

"I conferred with a high official of the Public Health Service yesterday and learned the good news that the medical experts, who will act as the advisers of the Secretary of the Treasury, have decided to recommend the placing of one of the hospitals in this State.

"These men have a site in mind in the Connecticut Valley section, near Springfield, which they say is most desirable, being centrally located, with good railroad connections to serve all parts of New England, having quiet and pleasing surroundings and a good health record.

"This hospital building is the biggest problem of the American Legion. It is the proposition in which every former service man in Congress is most deeply interested. There is no other matter so important as the care and treatment of the disabled. The Legion wants the general public to understand the tremendous need of more and better hospitals. Now that cashet was stolen for kindling wood. expected, will be made next week.

BOSTON'S RAPID TRANSIT PLANS ABOUT READY

Dorchester Circuit and Other Improvements to Cost $50,000,000

Plans of improvement of Boston's rapid transit and traffic system at a cost of $50,000,000 will be set forth in a joint report of the Transit Commission, the Department of Public Works Utilities and State Public Works Department to be made to the Legislature before March 1.

These plans include specifications of the proposed Dorchester circuit by electrification of the Dorchester railroad lines, extension of Boylston street tunnel to Postoffice square, construction of the traffic tunnel to East Boston and improvements in existing tunnels.

Featured among the reports will be the proposed construction of the Dorchester circuit which has been clamored for by the residents in the Dorchester district. The estimated cost will be about $20,000,000. Methods to be employed in bringing about completion of this circuit will be contained in the report of the transit and public utilities departments.

Before any of the projects can be carried out in relation to the Dorchester district, the Washington street station of the tunnel will have to be enlarged considerably to care for the extra traffic which will result from the Dorchester improvements. Engineers familiar with the subjects believe that necessary alterations at the Washington street station will cost approximately $10,000,000.

Another important improvement which has already been indicated by Mayor Peters in his annual message, is the continuation of the Boylston street subway to Postoffice square, at an estimated cost of $10,000,000. Improvements at Arlington street and extension of the East Boston tunnel are also being contemplated.

In developing traffic conditions, although not directly connected with the transit system, is the proposed traffic tube from the city proper to East Boston. This would include two tubes for vehicular and pedestrian traffic at a cost of about $16,000,000. Reports on these improvements, it is

New York, Feb. 10.—The dear old American public spent $600,000,000 on luxuries in 1920. Some idea of the widespread daily use of cosmetics and face powder and dainty soaps by women and girls may be gleaned from the figures quoted by the luxury tax records of the government, which report $50,000,000 spent on those products.

Candy lovers spent a paltry $150,000,000 on sweets; total diamond sales netted $54,000,000; perfumes, $5,000,000; jewelry, $62,000,000; furs, $100,000,000; hat and fan feathers, $3,000,000.

FIGHT FOR NEW TIME WAGED IN 13 STATES

57 Trade Bodies From Eastern Zone Form Association to Push Daylight Plan

New York, Feb. 10.—The Eastern Time Daylight Saving Association was organized here at a meeting of fifty-seven commercial organizations from New England, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. E. A. Filene of Boston presided, representing the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Three directors from each of the nineteen Eastern time States are to be elected to a board of organization.

The meeting was called by the Merchants' Association of Greater New York. Secretary Mead of the association declared that the Eastern time zone contains approximately half of the total population of the country and that saving is favored by the great majority whose "wishes should be considered." Only 19 per cent. engaged in agriculture, he said.

President Marks of the National Daylight Saving Association said he believed Congress would pass a national law if sentiment in the East demanded it and called for united action to overcome the objection of railroads.

General Manager Bardo of the New Haven railroad made it clear that railroads do not oppose national daylight saving but could not operate under two clocks and local option systems.

5 OF ALLEGED ARSON GANG ARE SENTENCED

After four years of court litigation, Israel Leventhal and Jacob Leventhal, brothers, together with Samuel Lishner, Jacob Smalier and Simon Levine, were to have been brought before Judge Sisk in the Superior Criminal Court today for sentence on the charge of arson. The five men are alleged to have been members of an arson gang which terrorized Greater Boston several years ago. They were recently denied a new trial by the full bench of the Supreme Court.

New York Starts Fight to Bar Out Typhus

New York, Feb. 10.—A bulwark against the dread typhus which threatens to sweep into this country from the scourge-stricken areas of Europe was erected today at Ellis Island by Frederick A. Wallis, immigration commissioner.

Steerage passengers, many of whom are the "dregs of humanity," according to Commissioner Wallis, arriving on recent ships from the Baltic, Holland, French and Italian ports are infested with body lice, the known carriers of the typhus germ. Recent inspections have shown upwards of 30 per cents of the steerage passengers infested with such lice, Wallis said.

Delousing stations, such as the American Expeditionary Forces encountered in France, were put into operation at Ellis Island today, upon orders of Commissioner Wallis, and every steerage immigrant, his clothes and baggage, will receive thorough disinfection.

Fourteen cases of typhus brought in by the Italian ship President Wilson a few days ago are being treated here.

Commissioner Wallis also revealed: 1—That a gigantic system of smuggling felons and other undesirable immigrants into the United States exists among steamship employes.

2—That 1,000 members of the British merchant marine have deserted their ships in American ports within the last ninety days.

3—That nearly half the immigrants from Europe are women, bereft of possible husbands by the war, who are coming here hoping to marry.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off."—Advertisement.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACK-HEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation—then, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—in a simple way, too—that is, to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of calonite powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition—anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.—Advertisement.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Will Vanish

(Houdoir Secrets)

The judicious use of a delatone paste insures any woman a clear, hairless skin. To prepare the paste, mix a little of the powdered delatone with some water, then apply to the objectionable hairs for two or three minutes. When the paste is removed, and the skin washed, every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain attends the use of the delatone and it will not mar the most sensitive skin, but to insure results, see that you get real delatone.—Advertisement.

MUST FILL OWN BLANK, SAYS MITCHELL

Income Tax Deputies Are to Give Aid Only, Collector Points Out

"Internal revenue deputies help those who help themselves."

This was the substance of a statement on the income tax problem made today by Collector John W. Mitchell. Many persons, Collector Mitchell point out, do not understand that the government has agents at the local offices ready to help taxpayers fill out their blanks, without expense.

On the other hand, he said some people think it is the deputies' business to do the actual work of filling out the blanks.

ALL GREEK TO HIM.

"Only recently," said Mr. Mitchell, "one of these men came into the office and handing a blank to a deputy told him to make it out for him. He was indignant when asked what he had done to help himself in preparing the return. He answered that he hadn't done a thing, as it was all Greek to him."

Here are some of the questions which were "Greek" to the taxpayer. On page 1 is a square at the top in which says: "Full name." Name, street and number or rural route postoffice, county and State." Down in the first few questions are:

"Are you a citizen of the United States?

"If not, are you a resident of the United States?

"If neither, of what country are you a citizen or subject?

"Did you file a return for 1918?

"If so, what address did you give on that return?

"To what collector's office was it sent?"

COMPUTATION OF TAX.

"There are several more questions of this character and then we turn to page two for computation of the tax," Mr. Mitchell proceeded. "The blocks are named 'schedules,' and the first, schedule A, is income from business or profession. If a man is in business or has a profession there are several items to be filled out. If not he can write 'None' and go to schedule B, in which he reports the amount of his salary, wages, commissions, bonuses, fees and pensions. Schedule C is to report the amount from partnerships, personal service corporations and fiduciaries. If the taxpayer received no income from them he simply writes 'None' and goes ahead.

"If a taxpayer can't follow the instructions or doesn't understand just what his exemption is or where certain amounts are to be inserted, then bring the return to a deputy and he'll give what advice or assistance is necessary.

"In all cases a reasonable and sincere attempt should be made by each person to fill out as much of the return as possible, and by giving the blank a little patient study a greater part of it can be easily accomplished without assistance.

"The indignant chap? Oh, he left smiling."

Mrs. W. I. Otis, Back Bay society woman, in the costume she wears at the Pilgrimage Fair

Turning a hand organ and putting the attendant monkey through his paces, while not a part of the usual social curriculum as taught in the Back Bay, was demonstrated with marked success by Mrs. W. I. Otis, prominent member of the Boston social set, at the two-day Pilgrimage Fair in Gilbert Hall.

The fair was held to raise funds toward furnishing two weeks' vacations at Camp Montwait, near Framingham, for poor residents of the North End.

Mrs. Frank Homer Burr was in charge of fancy articles; Mrs. Marianna R. Sargent, candy and ice cream; Mrs. Charles Delong, flower table; Mrs. James L. DeSantis, apron table; Mrs. S. Glambarest, entertainment; Mrs. I. H. Heath, children's booths, and Mrs. Harry Pennell, "grabs."

UNIFORMED GIRL STUDENTS STIR BOYS' WRATH

Springfield Youths Refuse to Associate With Wearers of "Middies"

Springfield, Feb. 10.—Boys of the Central High School are opposed to girl students adopting uniform dress.

The girls appeared in their new middy blouses and plain dark skirts yesterday.

Immediately after school sessions the boys held a mass meeting in protest. An organization was formed by 100 declaring that they will not associate with the wearers of the middy blouses.

The girls are determined to wear the uniform. A dead lock resulting in a students' strike may result. Faculty members are alarmed at the sudden turn in affairs.

Principal W. C. Hill was willing to let the girls adopt a uniform for the sake of economy and modesty. Miss Dora Brown, gymnasium instructor, originated the idea.

Students of the West Side High School who voted a uniform dress voted again today on the matter. Opinion has turned in favor of it.

Why You Must Have Iron to Make Your Body Strong and Your Brain Keen Alert and Powerful—Value of Spinach and Organic Iron to Help Make Rich Red Blood and Revitalize Worn-out Exhausted Nerves

WITH PLENTY OF BLOOD AND IRON, YOUR BRAIN is the most wonderful thing in all creation but without these it is nothing. IRON TAKES OXYGEN from your lungs and carries it to your brain. Without iron your brain gets no oxygen; and without plenty of rich red blood and oxygen your brain becomes dull and heavy. YOUR INTELLECT POOR, your memory fails, YOU DO FOOLISH THINGS, make bad decisions and you really amount to nothing, so far as accomplishing anything of importance is concerned.

Also without iron YOUR BLOOD BECOMES THIN AND WATERY and loses its power to change food into living cells and tissue and therefore nothing you eat does your body the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it.

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

When, as a result of iron starvation you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all tired out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong, or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but eat more spinach and other iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron with them to help enrich your blood and revitalize your wornout exhausted nerves. But be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take. Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is just as it comes from the earth. The organic iron used in the tablets is obtained from rice bran (the organic iron content) by eating half a quart of spinach and one quart of green vegetables. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of beef. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results from the use of all druggists

SOLDIER BONUS BILL WILL PASS

Legion Heads Receive Assurance From Senator Penrose of Favorable Action

Washington, Feb. 10.—The soldier bonus bill will pass Congress this session, Assurance to this effect was given the national legislative committee of the American Legion today by Senator Penrose, it was stated today by Gilbert Bettman of Ohio, chairman of the committee.

"There may be a few taxation features of the bill altered, Senator Penrose told us," Mr. Bettman said. "but we were given to understand by him that the bill in its substance is satisfactory to Congressional leaders. It is not thought likely that any of the alternative plans of compensation will be altered or that the scale of amounts will be changed."

SMOOT ALSO ENCOURAGING.

Senator Smoot was another legislator from whom the American Legion officials secured encouraging news. He stated, according to Mr. Bettman that the Wason bill providing for decentralization of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance will be reported out of committee, "it can be passed by the Senate in an hour," the Senator is quoted as saying.

There is hope also for the Kenyon-Pess bill broadening the scope of the vocational training act, the committee members were given to understand. Under this bill the fatherless children of men killed in the service will be enabled to take the same training as disabled veterans and the training bill also be thrown open to Americans who served with any of the allied armies.

CHARGES OF "PACKING."

Charges that government bureaus having to do with soldier relief are "packing the committees of the American Legion with bureau employes" were made before the legislative committee by Abel Davis of Chicago.

A recommendation that State divisions of the legion refrain from appointing government bureau employes to their committees was made by the legion legislative committee after they had heard Mr. Davis.

Galbraith Raps Hospital Facilities for Ill Veterans

Washington, Feb. 10.—Hospital facilities for sick, maimed and insane American veterans of the World War were declared to be not only "sadly inadequate," but, "in many instances rotten" by Colonel W. P. Galbraith, national commander of the American Legion and Colonel J. Davis, chief of staff of the Pennsylvania National Guard and department commander of the legion for Pennsylvania when they called on Senator Penrose.

"Something must be done by Congress to take care of our helpless ex-soldiers," Col. Galbraith said. "We estimate there are from 15,000 to 20,000 ex-soldiers not in our hospitals because no provision has been made for them.

"We do not anticipate the peak of tubercular and mental cases resulting from the World War will be reached for ten years, the peak of general cases for five years.

"In the meanwhile ample provision must be made by Congress for proper and adequate hospital facilities for the present and future care of our ex-soldiers."

SEIZED HAVERHILL LIQUOR IS RETURNED

Haverhill, Feb. 10.—A part of the liquor seized by federal enforcement authorities in the home of Michael Anderson, May 29, and valued at $4,000, has been returned.

Forty bottles are missing, eighteen disappearing at the local police station and the balance in Boston. The government has paid Anderson for the missing liquor.

WILLIAMS WARNS CAPITAL NOT TO SLASH WAGES

Washington, Feb. 10.—Labor has won a strong champion. John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, lined up behind workmen, pleading their cause and warning capital that it can ill afford to risk the dangers of wage cuts upon an unjust scale.

After a careful study of the financial situation as it relates to the industrial future, Williams said it is his opinion there should be no slashing of wages. If wages are to be reduced they should be equalized, he said.

RULE B. & M. MUST CONFER WITH WORKERS' UNION

Chicago, Feb. 10.—That it was the duty of the Boston & Maine Railroad to confer with the committees of the American Federation of Railroad Workers in the matter of grievances of members of that organization, was the substance of a decision handed down here by the United States Railroad Labor Board. The decision upholds the right of independent railroad organizations to present their grievances to road officials.

Cardinal Indorses Irish Relief Drive

ARCHBISHOP'S HOUSE
GRANBY STREET
BOSTON

February 7th, 1921.

Mr. James J. Phelan, Chairman,
Executive Committee, Massachusetts Branch,
American Committee for Relief in Ireland,
166 Devonshire Street,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Phelan:—

I have been following with great interest the plans of the Massachusetts Branch of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland to raise funds to alleviate the sad condition of the destitute and suffering women and children in Ireland, and I wish to assure you that the endeavors of the Committee have my hearty endorsement, and that I shall be pleased to co-operate in every way possible.

I cannot but feel that the appeal of the Committee will meet with a very generous response, for the people of America have never turned a deaf ear to the pleadings of the helpless and suffering of any land or race.

I wish the Committee in their noble efforts for the welfare of humanity a success which will far exceed even their highest expectations.

Very sincerely yours,

NOSKE ASSERTS WORKERS WILL FIGHT TERMS

Hanoverian President Thinks Normal World Impossible Under Present Conditions

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Boston American Staff Correspondent

Berlin, Feb. 10.—The prophecy is made by Gustav Noske, president of Hanover, that the German proletariat will unite to resist the conditions of the Allied agreement on reparation and indemnity reached by the Supreme Council at Paris.

Noske has received a long telegram from Noske in which he says:

"Germany, it is recognized, must pay compensation by the acceptance of a peace treaty which she will carry out loyally.

"President Wilson's fourteen points established that the principle of indemnification should not exceed the actual damages. A violation of this understanding would force the German classes below the level of a civilized nation.

"The working classes will never recognize the obligation of compulsory labor for the victors for forty-two years. It was principally the National Socialists who fought the conditions imposed by the Versailles treaty, but now it is the proletariat which will resist the Paris conditions which make impossible the re-establishment of normal world economics.

"The elimination of the German people as productive consumers will have a permanently paralyzing effect on the commerce and trade of all other countries. Therefore Germany will make propositions as to how far she can comply with the victors' demands without reducing the German people to slaves.

"The German plenipotentiaries must be recognized as equals in London if the fulfilment of the treaty is to be expected, which force alone cannot accomplish.

(Signed) "NOSKE."

Sweet Potato Syrup May Rival Sugar

Washington, Feb. 10.—Sugar shortages may not be so serious in the future if a sweet potato syrup recently developed by the Department of Agriculture and patented for the public justifies its initial tests.

While the product is a success from a laboratory standpoint, the department is not in a position to recommend it to manufacturers until questions of the cost of commercial production and the market value of the product, compared with cane, corn and other syrups, is determined.

These questions will be worked out in a production unit which the department is to establish at Pisgagrald, Ga., where there is a large potato-curing and storing establishment.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina.

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 35 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott, of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy!

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—

I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 4½ inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y.

KILEY CHARGES GRAFT IN USE OF STATE PIER

Demands Public Inquiry Into Storage Contracts at Commonwealth Docks

Charges that the lease of storage space in the Commonwealth Pier by Commissioner John N. Cole of the State Department of Public Works to the Atlantic Storage Company was "the most magnificent piece of graft in which the State has been a party in recent years," were made by Attorney Daniel J. Kiley at a public hearing before the House Rules Committee of the Legislature.

Kiley demanded a public probe of the storage lease and all other contracts and financial transactions of the department, including its deposit of $75,000 of State funds in the Fidelity Trust Company, which was closed by the Bank Commissioner.

CHARGES POLITICAL PULL.

That the contract was let without bid, solely through "political pull," at an outrageously low price, to a newly-formed corporation without experience, whose principal asset was an agreement to store British wool to be unloaded in this country at a discriminatory price and has resulted in great injury to the shipping of the port of Boston, were among the charges made by Kiley in his demand for a public and exhaustive probe.

Commissioner Cole, in a heated reply, declared that Kiley's charges were "absolutely false" and that he represented selfish storage interests, "which are largely responsible for the decay of the port of Boston."

Kiley charged that Representative Martin Hays of Brighton, a member of the Rules Committee, is clerk for the Atlantic Storage Company, that his political influence was largely responsible for securing the bid, and he condemned Hays' audacity in sitting here examining witnesses who represent the public." Hays admitted his connection as "counsel" of the company. Speaker Young said that Mr. Hays probably would not participate in the committee's executive consideration of the probe demand.

$5,000,000 INVESTED.

"Over $5,000,000 of the people's money was invested in Commonwealth Pier," said Kiley, who is counsel for the National Dock & Storage Warehouse Company. "It was built for the purpose of bring foreign commerce to the port of Boston. It was never intended to be used and should not be used for dead storage. Yet ships coming into this port have been deprived of dock room and have been obliged to pay demurrage charges of $1,000 to $3,000 a day or else move to another port.

"This contract was given, without public notice, and without a written contract, to a newly-formed $5,000 corporation, which had only $1,200 of cash and $3,800 of contracts with the British government for the storage of wool. It has no investment of size, pays no taxes, had no experience in the business.

"One Fonseca, friend and neighbor of Hays and who received the lease through the influence of Hays, controls a majority of the stock. He used to work here in the State House and later in the Elections Department of Boston. Nothing but political influence got him that lease.

"The British government had accumulated 2,000,000 bales of wool. Instructions were issued to find a market, regardless of price. Colonel Willey was ordered to sell it in competition with American-made goods and then we see this company organized and storing the wool in a pier built by the American people for the development of American shipping.

PRIVATE COMPANIES INJURED.

"For a time, this company was charged only five cents a square foot and that only for the space actually used. That doesn't tell the whole story. The pier has a twenty-foot clearance and two or three bales could be piled up on top of each other. Against this competition private companies couldn't live.

"You are permitting the use of an up-to-date pier, one of the best in the world, for dead storage and are putting thousands of dollars into the pockets of individuals.

"While Cole never advertised for bids, the United States government advertised for bids for the use of the Army base and provided that there should be no storage on the ground floor and, in any part of the building, for more than thirty days.

"The United Storage had a man over there at the pier named Merriam. He had a row with Fonseca and they had a falling out. He organized the Market Storage, got his influence working, and was allowed to go in on the same terms as Fonseca. Summons the books and papers of this department, put the witnesses under oath and let us have the whole truth about all this deal."

DENIES LAW VIOLATED.

Cole said that his department deposited its funds only in banks approved by the Governor and Council, that it had violated no State laws and that the statement that it had failed to co-operate with the State Treasurer in the matter of State deposits was "absolutely false."

"We can trace this agitation to the British situation," he said. "And behind that is the selfish interests which are charging he highest storage rates in the world and are largely responsible for the decay of the port of Boston."

"If you want to reduce the income of this property from $196,800 a year to $54,000, the amount when they had it, and to have them take their friends on an auto ride and say, pointing to the pier, 'Isn't that a beautiful amphitheatre?' that is up to you.

"Nearly all this is personal. Kiley is representing a client which hasn't got what it wanted. And he is faithful to his clients, whether they be in a 'Pink Elephant' convention or are attempting to get something they want."

MAINE MURDER JURY CHOSEN QUICKLY

Mother of New Bedford Boy Defendant Breaks Down in Courtroom

Skowhegan, Me., Feb. 10.—Court records for speed in this country were broken here when a jury was empanelled and fifteen witnesses for the State examined during the first day of the trial of Homar Spurlock, aged twenty-two, of Ashland, Ky.; John Brown, aged twenty-three, of Boston, and James Purcell, aged nineteen, of New Bedford, charged with the murder of Ana Ehtrikan, aged sixty. Embden station agent.

REUNION OF LOST SHIP SURVIVORS IS PLANNED

Will Commemorate Sinking of U. S. S. Trenton in Hurricane at Samoa in 1889

Were you aboard the U. S. S. Trenton when she grounded on the coral reef in the harbor of Apia, Samoa, during the terrific hurricane of March, 1889?

If you were, an old shipmate, William J. Jennings, commander of the All-Dorchester Post, American Legion, wants you to chip in on a "chin-chin and feed."

Jennings is a veteran of three wars, as well as a survivor of that hurricane, in the course of which he volunteered to swim ashore with a line, in an effort to save his ship and shipmates. His offer was refused and he was forced to watch the ship drift to her doom and later to report the loss of 150 American bluejackets.

Although fifty years old when the U. S entered the World War he tried to enlist in the army but was refused. Later he managed to enlist as a machinist in the navy and was on board the Ticonderoga when she was torpedoed and sunk, September 5th, 1918.

He is planning a reunion of all survivors of the Trenton on the 32d anniversary of the disaster, and asks that any of "the old timers" who see this get in touch with him at his home No. 196 sawyer avenue, Dorchester. His phone number is Dorchester 3062-W.

DENY OFFER TO PAY BUILDERS $1 AN HOUR

Workingmen Mistaken as to Action at Mayor's Conference, Say Employers

Businessmen and workingmen err in thinking that a $1 an hour rate was offered to striking building workers at the conference between the employers' association and the union officials, the Building Trades Employers' Association announces in a public statement. The statement affirms that at no time during the conference in the Mayor's office was an offer made to revise the schedule of wages posted by employers in January, 1921.

Heart and Lungs Inert, Man Returns to Life

By Universal Service.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—What is death?

Medical men here today were frankly puzzled over the strange case of Charles McMahon, an interior decorator, who to all indications was dead yesterday, but who today is alive and as he expressed it, "better than forty dead men."

If one is "dead" when the heart ceases to beat, the lungs apparently cease to respond to all known tests and the body grows cold, then, McMahon was "dead" on an operating table where an operation had been performed for a variety of organic disorders.

Nurses called attention of operating surgeons to the patient's condition and a mirror held to the mouth showed not the slightest moisture. The described symptoms of dissolution appeared one by one. Oxygen was administered many times without apparent effect and then suddenly McMahon heaved a sigh.

Continued work brought McMahon completely out of the anaesthetic and today he was resting easily in his hospital room.

Alligator to Frolic on White House Lawn

By Universal Service.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt had his horses, President Taft his cow—the famous Pauline—and President Wilson his sheep. Therefore there was considerable speculation as to what President Harding would turn loose in the White House grounds after March 4. That burning question was set at rest when Senator Trammell of Florida, called at the executive offices today.

It's an alligator.

And it isn't one of those little new-born fellows, either, but a regular man's-sized 'gator, according to the Senator. It is the gift of Henry M. Bennett, of Jacksonville, Fla.

INCREASED PAY REFUSED PHONE OPERATORS

Driver Denies Union Request for Inquiry Board to Consider Wages

The demand of telephone operators for an increase in wages is refused by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

General Manager W. R. Driver, Jr., of the company, met a committee representing the New England Council of Telephone Operators' Unions and gave them in writing the following reply to their request of a week ago:

"I have considered your letter of February 1st, in which you state that wages and working conditions of telephone operators are inequitable, and ask me to agree to the establishment of a publicly constituted board of inquiry to consider these matters.

"I have taken time also to review the whole matter of your earlier request for more wages, shorter hours of work, and other modifications of working conditions, which, if granted, would increase greatly the cost of telephone service to the New England public.

COST OF LIVING LOWERED.

"When we discussed these questions in December our conferences ended only after what I understood to be a definite statement from you that you had no other facts or arguments to present, and as I suggested in the memorandum I gave you on December 11th, you have been and still are at liberty to discuss any new facts with me.

"I believed in December that conditions did not warrant my granting your request, and I must point out that since that time costs of living have continued to decline, and now are lower than when we agreed upon your present wage schedule; also, the reductions in wages in many industries, which in December were merely imminent, have now become realities.

"Although our business has decreased no operator has been discharged for that reason; on the contrary, after conferences with your committees means have been found to keep everybody at work for the maximum of time consistent with the traffic to be handled.

WORK ONLY 7½ HOURS.

"While the day shift for operators is nominally eight hours, it is so reduced by recess periods that maximum number of hours actually worked is 7½, while those operators who work evenings, or at night, have still shorter hours. Working conditions are as good as a sympathetic management can make them.

"I think you are unduly concerned about the withdrawal of the extra payment offered in certain cities and towns to student operators during emergency conditions. We have made no wage reduction affecting any operator actually in service, as a student operator. We have simply withdrawn the extra payment offered to students under war conditions when because of the return to normal conditions the need of special inducements in the form of extra payment no longer existed. We now have on our waiting list several hundred bright and capable young women, and the number of applications far exceeds our needs.

ALIVE TO PUBLIC DUTY.

"While I disagree entirely with the allegations of your letter, I must especially point out my disagreement with your innuendo that those who recently have come into our service are not equal in capability to those formerly employed. The management is alive to its public duty to maintain a sufficient and competent operating force, and is responsible therefor to the authorities which the public has already placed in charge of such matters.

"Operators' wages have not been reduced and the officers of the company have said to you that it is their policy to maintain existing wages as long as possible, and that with the co-operation of all employes to secure efficiency, they believe this is feasible.

RECOURSE IN COURTS.

"These considerations lead me to reaffirm the statements contained in my memorandum of December 11th—that this is not the time to increase wages or to modify conditions of work which are unsurpassed in other lines of endeavor.

"If you still insist upon forcing your contention, I can only point out that in the States in which these companies operate there are publicly and lawfully constituted tribunals which have jurisdiction to consider such matters as you refer to in your letter. Your rights before such bodies are defined by laws established by the public whose interest is here involved, and I am convinced that it is unnecessary on this occasion to go outside of the means thus provided for the consideration of such questions."

WOULD SPEND 5 BILLIONS FOR GERMAN LEFTOVERS

By Universal Service.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Purchase of the four German submarine cables which cover the world, and of her important colonies in Africa, and elsewhere for $5,000,000,000, are proposed in a resolution which will be introduced in the Senate today by Senator France, of Maryland.

A formal conference between the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to arrange for the settlement of war debts in this country and a reduction of the German indemnity will also be proposed.

NEW CEMETERY CHIEF FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Williamstown, Feb. 10.—Twenty-four hours after he was elected cemetery commissioner at the town meeting, George R. Haley was arrested on three charges of violating the liquor laws. In the local court he was found not guilty of maintaining a liquor nuisance, but was fined $100 for selling hard cider to Thomas Mattimore. Sentence was suspended. He was also fined $50 for selling hard cider to Karl O'Dell.

Haley appealed and was bound over to the Superior Court. Bail was fixed at $200.

TWO JAILED IN BOGUS LIQUOR LABEL RAID

Hanover St. Printer and Alleged Plate Maker Charged With Counterfeiting

Presses printing thousands of counterfeit "bottled in bond" revenue stamps were revolving at full speed when Federal Prohibition agents raided the printing shop of J. Hecht Company, No. 191 Hanover street.

Thousands of counterfeit labels of popular intoxicating beverages, Federal tax stamps and "warning" stamps were found.

Five thousand "Canadian Lottery Company" tickets for a drawing on February 24 for prizes of from $2,500 to $30,000 were seized, together with a list of thousands of customers.

A score of counterfeit plates of the government stamps and liquor labels and six plates for printing the lottery tickets were also taken.

TWO ARE JAILED.

James Hecht, proprietor, of No. 51 Wall street, West End, was arrested in the shop. Shortly afterward Alphonse De Santos of No. 6 Margaret street, North End, alleged to have engraved the plates, walked into the shop and was arrested.

Both pleaded not guilty to the specific charge of counterfeiting "bottled in bond" revenue stamps before United States Commissioner Hayes. They were committed to East Cambridge jail in default of $5,000 bail each, recommended by United States Attorney Carroll.

Revenue Officers Lill, Rogers and McNulty comprised the raiding party. Finding of the counterfeit stamps obliged them to summons Secret Service Agents McKenna and McCormick.

LOTTERY RUN FOR MONTHS.

Disclosure of the lottery plant promises to reveal one of the biggest lottery schemes of years in New England. It is not known whether the lottery is genuine, but it is believed to have been operating for several months. The lottery tickets bore the fac simile of the signatures of "A. G. Mosell, treasurer," and "N. L. Flure, secretary." Most of the tickets were printed in French and are said to be worth $2 each.

The prisoner De Santos, who is twenty years old, admitted making the counterfeit plates of the strip stamps indicating tax is paid at certain rates on liquors, according to the federal authorities. He is now under indictment for having in his possession last November a counterfeit plate of a $10 federal reserve note, the case against him being on file.

The federal officials also declare that De Santos confessed to selling government stamps in sets of twelve for cases of liquor at the rate of 6,000 a week for $2.50 a set.

Twenty-five packages of tax stamps were found in the North End home of De Santos, according to the raiders. De Santos is alleged to have declared that Hecht printed the stamps because of being under obligation to him.

Hecht is alleged to have admitted printing the bogus labels for the persons who furnished the plates and ordered the printing. Search is being made for the plate manufacturers. Hecht is well known as a printer of foreign literature and radio publicity. His son, Samuel, seventeen years old, one of seven children, operating a press, was released.

The following is a list in part of the property seized:

Seven thousand strip (federal tax stamps).
Two thousand "warning" stamps.
Two thousand five hundred Gleanmore whiskey labels.
One thousand two hundred Grand-Dad whiskey labels.
Two thousand F. H. Taylor Sons whiskey labels.
Five thousand Gordon gin labels.
Two thousand Sunnybrook whiskey labels.
Two strip stamps plates.
One complete cut, "bottled in bond."
Two Grand-Dad labels cuts.
Four Gordon Gin cuts.
Two Gleanmore whiskey label cuts.
One complete Gordon Gin trade mark cut.
Six Canadian Lottery Company ticket cuts.
Thousands of unlisted labels and their plates.

Urges Dancing Supervision for the Schools

Photos by Hollinger & Young

High school dancing, showing extreme "dipping," due to gymnasium practice, illustrated by Professor O'Brien and Miss Grace Kerivan. Professor O'Brien and Miss Helen Dineen illustrating the proper way to hold hands, the lady's palm up and her fingers grasped gently, but firmly, by the gentleman, with palm down.

Dancing as taught in the public schools is all wrong, according to Professor William O'Brien.

This well-known instructor and authority today gives the third in a series of four talks through the Boston American on modern dancing and what ails it.

"Some people seem to think the coming generation will dance better because dancing is now taught in many public schools," says Professor O'Brien.

Then he rudely demolishes this hope, as follows: "As taught in public schools dancing is of the playground or gymnasium variety. It is basically wrong.

"It is more a physical culture exercise than real dancing, and is all wrong in the ballroom or anywhere else good dancing is enjoyed.

"It lacks rhythm and is jerky and ungraceful. With its up and down hop it is more of the ballet or buck and wing variety than the ordinary dancing the children will do in later life.

"These dances are 'against the air or 'to the wind,' as we say. Everyday dancing is known by dancing instructors as 'against the floor.' It is the latter kind that is not taught, but is used in later life.

ADVOCATES SUPERVISION.

"I advocate as Remedy No. 3 for the rehabilitation of the dance the appointment of a supervisor of dancing in the public schools.

"He or she should be expert, and able to make the assistants competent to teach those under them.

"Dancing is not only an art and entertainment, but a part of life, and a good dancer gets many returns in the way of proper carriage and self confidence that the thoughtless never consider.

"Dancing and the way it is taught in schools are important matters. They may even affect the appearance of a child. Those properly taught are likely to be of smart and upright appearance. Those improperly taught or not taught at all are just as likely to slouch, 'hunch over' or carry themselves as if they felt they had too many arms and legs.

Proper ballroom dancing, as I have said, is as different as you can imagine, from the gymnastic sort taught in the schoolroom.

"In the correct ballroom dancing the dancer bends his or her knee as little as possible. In the other the dancer tries to be athletic and lift the feet.

"As training for the stage it may be all right. But as training for the boy or girl who simply means to enjoy him or herself, it is a failure.

TEACHERS LACK SKILL.

"What is the reason for all this, and what the remedy?

"The reason is that most teachers do not know how to teach dancing. Many do not know how to dance themselves. They are not professional teachers of the art.

"As a rule they have taken up the work in connection with gymnasium study, or their normal school work, or hurriedly read up on dancing when they learned another subject was to be added to their lists. The remedy is a supervisor of dancing.

"We should not look to the stage for suggestions on the dance. Stage dancing is for the few. What we want is a method that will train average young humans to move with freedom and grace, not as if they were perpetually about to step on themselves."

Tomorrow, in the last of his talks, Professor O'Brien will discuss jazz dancing and make some general reflections on his art.

Continued Tomorrow.

NON-UNION JURY TO TRY MINERS FOR MURDER

West Virginia Court Bars American Federation of Labor Men From Service

Williamson, W. Va., Feb. 10.—A "non-union" jury was sworn in to try Bid Hatfield, chief of police of Matewan, and his twenty co-defendants of the charge of murdering Detective Albert Felts.

The plea won in its contention that members of any union affiliated with the Federation of Labor and, through it, with the United Mine Workers of America, are not fit to sit on the jury because of alleged bias in favor of the defendants, many of whom are union miners.

Favors 1-Day Layoff to Aid Jobless

Oneco, Ct., Feb. 10.—C. B. Robideaux, local agent for the American Express Company, has sent broadcast among the employes of that company of this division, an appeal for the adoption of his plan for aiding the former employes who have been dropped from the pay roll.

The proposal, which is known as the "Robideaux plan," has the approval of the company officials here.

"My proposal is a simple one," said Mr. Robideaux. "I have suggested to every employe still with the company, that we extend a helping hand to our less fortunate brothers by taking one day off each week. This would give the unlucky ones a chance to work six days a week, and at the same time allow those of us who hold permanent positions one day a week for rest and recuperation, which we need."

Worcester, Feb. 10.—Mrs. Flora Ledoux of No. 1046 Main street has confessed to the police that it was at her home that the fatal shooting of Oliver E. Wolcott of Uxbridge occurred. Wolcott died at the City Hospital after walking there, and a "mystery woman" had been sought in the case. She alleges he shot himself accidentally, playing, as was his custom, with a revolver.

William J. Smith of Uxbridge, who called on Wolcott at the hospital, says Wolcott also declared the shooting was accidental.

MASCO MOPS
The MASCO reaches the hard-to-reach places
Buy three MASCO Mops. Use one as a wet mop, one as a dry mop and one as an oil mop. To make an oil mop soak a MASCO with a good floor oil and let dry.

Once over with a MASCO equals twice over with any other Mop!

Every MASCO Mop is trade marked and wrapped

The light, household size MASCO retails for 45c, the medium size for 60c and the large size for 75c.

THE great big difference between the MASCO Mop and every other mop is the eager way it soaks up water.

That's the whole story, and it's true. We are not going to try to make you believe you are buying the Queen's lace handkerchief or a bit of old French brocade. A mop is a mop,—only the MASCO is a much better one.

It's made of a better yarn, long fibre, strong, that won't flop to pieces before its time. It is twice as absorbent as any other mop yarn made.

A MASCO Mop costs a few cents more than any other mop. It is worth it. Those few extra pennies make it a better mop. They don't make any extra profit for anyone—but they guarantee you more satisfaction in the work done and the way it's done.

There isn't any more romance in making mops than there is in using them.

A mop, at best, is a homely, honest bundle of cotton strings to fasten to a handle to make it easy for you to wash up floors.

By making a new kind of mop yarn—extra soft and absorbent we have made it easy for you to do a disagreeable job in half the usual time. Right now—today—throw away your old mop and buy a MASCO Mop!

For housewives we have made the MASCO in a light, small, eight ounce size. It has shorter strings that don't swish. It reaches the corners and doesn't leave a high-water mark on baseboards. It fits the work and fits your hands. It wrings out as easily as it soaks up. The MASCO also comes in bigger sizes for man-size jobs, the mopping up of halls, stores, etc. And always it drinks up water like a camel seven days away from a drink.

We have named, trade marked and wrapped the MASCO, making it easy for you to ask for it, and easy for you to identify it. Demand a MASCO Mop and accept no other. Your dealer has it or can get it from the distributors named below.

For sale by grocers, housefurnishing and hardware dealers.

Stocks Irregular in New York; Money 7%; Sterling Up

PRICE RANGE NARROW IN NEW YORK

Coppers Are Strong and Steels Steady, While Oils and Rails Are Mixed

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in the New York at noon, prices being below the best level of the morning. Coppers came as near being a feature as anything that the market presented. They were strong and more active than for some time. Steels were steady, while oils and rails mixed in price movement.

Trading was more active than for several days, first hour transactions exceeding 140,000 shares. Call money opened at 7 per cent. There was a better tone to the foreign exchange market at the start, demand sterling advancing ¾c to 3.87¾, while francs made a small gain.

Among strong stocks were Anaconda, Inspiration, Utah, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Sinclair, American Smelting, Wells and common and Crucible. They were up from one to two points at their highest. Weak issues included Texas Gulf, Sears Roebuck, Royal Dutch and General Asphalt. They were down from fractions to a point or more.

WEAK TONE AT START.

At the opening the tone was heavy and a majority of the leaders showed small losses. But there was quick improvement for a few, although the list in general remained on a lower level. The trend was far from being pronounced. The two issues to show the most strength and activity in early trading were American Woolen and Anaconda, the former advancing more than two points and the latter more than one point within a few minutes. Crucible did the best in the steel department list and Mexican Petroleum was the oil leader. Royal Dutch was a weak oil. Reading set the pace for rails, but made a fractional advance only. Rails had a mixed movement and were quiet. There were more trading in Industrials. Shipping shares were weak, with Atlantic Gulf receding two most. Sugar were neglected. Little was done in motors. The first hour price movement was irregular.

TRADE SHIFT POSITION.

It is reported that some important speculators have shifted positions and are now operating on the short side. Signs of easier money have prompted the move. Judge Gary's statement that price cutting has created no more demand is verified in the instance of copper and some other products. Now plans for a price "war" between steel producers as there was last week in regard to sugar refiners. The engagement made to finance the export sale of 400,000,000 pounds of metal gave copper shares a decided lift. Continental Court proceedings made Continental Candy weak and active stock this morning.

The technical condition of the market is having more to do with the attitude of traders. Talk is no more sanguine, but the recent resistance which bears have encountered in their drives for lower prices proves that stocks are scarce and hard to force out. It is generally believed that the market will continue dull and hesitant for some time.

Wholesale Prices Lower

According to a R. G. Dun & Co. report commodity prices declined 6.4 per cent in January, compared with decline of 6.2 per cent. in December and 6.9 per cent. in November. Prices now are 39.4 per cent. below the high of last May.

Wall Street Briefs

National bank reports as of November 18 showed loans and discounts, including rediscounts, amounted to $16,194,000,000.

Net earnings of Studebaker for the last 1920 quarter amounted, after deducting all charges, to $620,707, against $429,830 preceding quarter.

Cities Service Co. reports gross earnings for net profit after Federal taxes of $8,320,667, against $8,130,300 in 1919.

Scovill Manufacturing net earnings for last year, after charges and taxes, were $2,682,967, which is equal to $19.68 a share on $5,000,000 outstanding capital stock, against $2,134,025 or $48.13 in 1919.

Middle States Oil Corporation Co. balance sheet as of June 30, 1920, shows profit and loss surplus $1,779,606, against $1,566,607 June 30, 1919.

U. S. STEEL NOT TO REDUCE PRICES

Judge Gary Declares Cutting Will Bring No More Business to Producers

New York, Feb. 10.—The United States Steel Corporation has no intention of cutting its present selling prices, Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors, declared today. His attention had been called to the recent cuts in steel prices announced by the independent corporations.

"Price cutting will bring in no more business," Judge Gary declared, "and those resorting to it can receive but a temporary advantage."

TEXTILES ACTIVE IN CERTAIN LINES ONLY

With the exception of sheetings, ginghams and a few well known or branded lines of standard goods, the textile trade in New England remains quiet. Slight price recessions, particularly in print cloths, indicate effort by mill men to get enough orders to operate plants at capacity. Mills in this part of the country are operating at from 40 per cent to 60 per cent. But very few mills are wholly idle.

Textile activity is being restricted by the failure of cotton to maintain its recent advance. So far this season domestic consumption of the staple is running about 21 per cent. behind a year ago and foreign takings about 25 per cent.

Hisgen Elected President

Thomas L. Hisgen of Springfield, Mass., has been elected president of the Friendswood Texas Oil Co. to succeed P. K. Snow, resigned. The officers of the corporation are Springfield and Boston business men. It owns leases in Kansas and Texas and Mr. Hisgen accepted the office after making in December a tour of inspection through Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas oil fields. He was formerly president of the Four Brothers Incorporated. He had sold his interest in the same to the Sinclair Oil Co. in 1917. His long battle for oil which Freedom resulted in the passage by the Massachusetts legislature of the Hisgen anti-discrimination bill. He made a remarkable run as a candidate for governor in 1907 and in 1908 at convention, all over the country as a candidate for President of the United States. He will have immediately to superintend drilling operations in Kansas and Texas.

Germany Making Dyes

According to a statement attributed to French experts and which comes from Paris, Germany is exceeding pre-war production of coal tar dyes. Its February output of this kind will break records. The Paris press exhibits saying: "Dye markets are obliged to place about one-quarter of product at disposal of exportations of commission. The remainder is offered by a syndicate in foreign markets at prices considered to be considerably lower than those of English and American competitors."

Low Record Steel Output

January was a low record month for steel ingot production, according to American Iron & Steel Institute figures. Production by thirty chief producers was but 2,501,866 tons.

EMPLOYMENT IN BAY STATE ON INCREASE

Canvass Shows More Men Employed Now Than Two Months Ago

More men and women are employed in the industrial plants of Massachusetts today than there were two months ago, while the plants are running more hours a week. Wage reductions have been neither as general nor as great as people suppose, according to the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, which draws its conclusions from the results of a canvass of 267 industries in thirty-five Bay State cities and towns.

The canvass was confined almost wholly to concerns employing at least 500 workers, but embraced nearly every kind of industry represented in the membership of the association.

The industries were asked to give the number of their employees as of December 1, 1920, and February 1, 1921. The number employed under normal conditions, the "full time" working hours and the number employed at the period of the canvass, and to state whether any wage or bonus reduction had been made, and, if so, how much.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASES.

The returns show that 185,654 persons were employed in the 267 plants on February 1 as against 182,765 on December 1, 1920, and 249,351 under normal conditions.

The decrease in the industry covered by the Associated Industries' canvass, approximately 25.55 per cent. of those employed under normal conditions were out of work on February 1, while approximately 2.1 per cent. were out of work two months previously, showing an increase of a fraction over 1 per cent in the number of persons employed in industry in Massachusetts from December 1, 1920, to February 1, 1921.

In 116 of the 267 concerns canvassed by the Associated Industries no wage reduction had been made up to February 1. In all the others of these a general reduction either of wages or bonuses, but in many cases these reductions are considerably modified readjustments.

The largest general reduction is in the textile industry, 61 plants in this industry reporting a reduction of 22¾ per cent, two 22 per cent, five 20 per cent and one 25 per cent.

REDUCTIONS REPORTED.

One plant reported a reduction of 5 per cent, fourteen reported 10 per cent, one reported 10 to 12½ per cent, one 7½ per cent, nine 15 per cent, one 16 per cent, two 17 per cent, two 17½ per cent, one 10 to 25 per cent, one 20 per cent, in one department, one 15 per cent, in place work 20 per cent, in production force and 15 per cent. in mechanical force. Twelve industries reported reductions, but did not give figures.

One concern in Southbridge reported an average payroll reduction of 25 per cent., but explained that this included shorter hours, smaller force and smaller rate.

Table Shows Increase of Employed in State

BANTAM BOXERS BATTLE AT C. A. C. IN DRIVE FOR N. E. TITLE

NEW STAR TO SHOW WORTH

Joey Dailey, Now of Boston, Takes on Paul Demers in Feature Bout

By JACK CONWAY.

Paul Demers, New Bedford 120-pounder, and Joey Dailey, who is now making his home in this city, will furnish the thrills in a ten-round bout at the Commercial A. A.'s show at Scenic Theatre tonight. It is one of the best bantamweight bookings made by a local club in several months.

Demers is one of the classiest performers of his weight in this section, and Dailey is the two-way boy who defeated Artie Levine at Providence a few months ago, a good victory over Eugene Brown, Dutch Brandt, Jim Kid and Barney Snyder. He's one of those fast, clever boxers who can also land a punishing punch.

Tommy Grandelli, one of the New Bedford boy's drive to win the New England championship. He believes that if he can score a victory over Dailey he will be in a position to demand a contest with Friedman.

Dailey is very liable to upset Demers' plans. He has appeared in more than sixty bouts to his credit. Among other things he has a draw to his credit with Jack Wilson, while he has defeated Dutch Brandt, who recently won over Vincent Marullo at Worcester.

Dailey made his Boston debut at the Elks' carnival and displayed a world of class. He is now out to trounce Demers and thus establish himself firmly with local fans.

Matchmaker McKirdy has also arranged an eight-round semi-final and a couple of sixes. The fans are assured a card of action, it is the most important match the Commercial Club has booked since it shifted its quarters to Scenic Temple and as a result a large gathering is sure to turn out to witness festivities.

Managers Helped to Make Elks' Show

The rush of events connected with several big local shows has prevented us from giving a little space to one Joe Bagley of New York, a real factor in every way, in the success of the Elks' athletic carnival at Mechanics Building was due in no small measure to the whole-hearted support the Elks received from Bagley. He furnished the services of Willie Jackson, Augie Ratner, Kid Wolfe and the other members of his stable of boxers. He gladly met the good several matches in order that he would help to swell the fund for the Children's Hospital.

Paddy Mullins was another manager who helped to make the affair a success by deciding over Mike Otwell.

The actions of grareous-hearted men like Bagley and Mullins, who have not received any money out of bouts in order to help some time, is a decided contrast to that of another group of managers who promised to have their boxers appear and who had them withdrawn at the last moment. Then there was a local boxing club which placed its own interests above those of the little crippled kiddies. Maybe a few names of those who failed to do their bit would be appreciated by the fans.

Tom Goodwin Has Fixed Fine Card for Quincy

Tom Goodwin has arranged a bang-up local card for his show at the Quincy Boxing Club next Monday night. Young Gould of Brockton, who has always given the fans plenty of action when he has appeared in Quincy rings, will have Joe Pangrase of Quincy as an opponent in the feature tussle of ten rounds. These boys will be surrounded by a strong prelim card.

Amateurs to Battle in Scenic Temple

The St. Philips A. A. will stage an open amateur boxing show at Scenic Temple tomorrow night. There will be bouts at 108, 115 and 125 pounds. Billy Sullivan of South Boston and Al Waters of the North End will clash in a special match.

Trembly on Trail of Johnny Wilson

Jim MacDonald came to bat today with the stirring announcement that Eddie Trembly is out to secure a match with Johnny Wilson. MacDonald is of the opinion that his protege displayed enough punching power in his contest with Young Jack Johnson to warrant the belief that he can defeat Wilson.

MacDonald also informed us that George Robinson would like another match with Jack (Twin) Sullivan. He stipulates, however, that Sullivan must make weight which will be at least within ten pounds of Robinson's poundage.

Wallace and Valgar to Box at Lowell

The ten-round bout between Eddie Wallace and Benny Valgar, billed to be decided at Lowell tonight, has been put back for a week by Matchmaker Joe McCarthy. Wallace asked for more time to get into condition as he believes he will win over the French Flash if right as to condition.

B. C. AND HOLY CROSS IN BRAVES FIELD GAME

Boston College and Holy Cross will stage their annual June 17 diamond battle at Braves Field. The contest originally was planned for University Heights, but it was felt that the crowd likely to attend this year's game could not be handled on the college grounds.

ST. PATRICKS OUT TO STOP HARVARD

Canadian Hockey Team Meets Crimson Seven—Shoe Trades Win

ARENA LINEUP.

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Jabish Holmes, Crimson goal tender, who has seen only two enemy shots during the past 150 minutes of the current hockey season, may find his record considerably altered before the final whistle is sounded tonight, for Harvard's opponent, the St. Patricks of Ottawa, has come to town with a very nifty team, according to all accounts and is determined to break the Crimson winning streak.

Several of the St. Patricks players are not unfamiliar with the Crimson's style of play. Tobin, the goal tend, and Fleming, the coverpoint, are said to be former members of the McGill University array that sent Harvard to defeat a year or two before the war, while one or two others appearing in the Canadian lineup are men who have seen Winsor hockey played and believe they know the way to beat that system.

Harvard will insist that seven-men teams be used in the game, and inasmuch as the St. Pats have been playing the six-men style all season, this change may affect their effectiveness.

Protested Player Helps Shoe Trades to Win

Monsieur Dufresne played for the Boston Shoe Trades Club in what may prove to have been the second game of the Winsor Cup series. Monsieur Dufresne played very effectively and had much to do with the first defeat administered by a rival club to the B. A. A. But, because Monsieur Dufresne did play, the game was staged under protest, and until Monsieur Dufresne is definitely accounted and vouched for it will not be known whether the victory will count for aught or naught.

The score of the game was 4 to 3 in favor of the Cobblers—two of the four Shoe Trades goals being tallied by said Dufresne, a third developing from a rebound of a Dufresne shot, and the fourth materializing through an individual effort by Irving Small. One B. A. A. point was sandwiched in between the four Shoe Trade tallies, and two more Unicorn counters came afterward, whereupon Captain Skilton kept his entire team playing defensive hockey, and weathered the final twenty minutes of play without scoring or being scored upon.

Stories of Famous Fights

The Ketchel-Johnson Battle

This is the thirty-second of a series of "Old Time Fights," written by authorities on pugilism who were famous in their day. Others will follow.

Today we tell you the story of the last Johnson-Stanley Ketchel fight. The battle was won by Johnson in the twelfth round. It was held just outside San Francisco on October 16, 1909.

By W. W. Naughton

The Ketchel-Johnson fight ended as everyone of judgment in these matters supposed it would end. Ketchel, who is a wonder when equally matched, had about as much chance with the giant negro as a rabbit would have with a greyhound.

Johnson toyed with his man for eleven rounds and then put Ketchel to sleep with a volley of punches so fierce that the skin of Johnson's gloves was torn through contact with the middleweight champion's teeth.

When Ketchel fell he went down heavily and spread-eagled on the floor on his back, his arms thrown out to the fullest extent. He was as lifeless as a log, and a look of concern spread over Johnson's face. He eyed Ketchel closely while the count was in progress, and when it was all over and they gathered up the battered Michigander and bore him to his corner, Johnson tip-toed after and heaved a sigh of relief when he saw that his victim was slowly coming back from slumberland.

Closing Round Sensational

The closing round was a sensational one, and at the same time a peculiar one. Here is the way it went: Johnson for several rounds stood statuelike in the beginning and then suddenly snapped at Ketchel's face with his left that shot across as a dart. In this particular round, Ketchel went at Johnson the moment the gong rang. Johnson met him with one of his left prods, and someone in Ketchel's corner yelled, "Now, then, Stanley!" Ketchel started a giant swing with the right and his glove curved around Johnson's neck. Johnson fell clumsily to the floor, close to where the writer sat, and I noticed a grin on his face as he went down. He did not remain down an instant, but jumped up quickly and turned to meet Ketchel's rush. Ketchel fairly impaled himself on Johnson's fast flying fists and fell.

Johnson has the habit of infusing buffoonery into his fights at times, especially when he has matters well in hand, and at the first available opportunity after the contest I asked him why he went down grinning from what was at best a glancing blow.

On the Mastoid Process

"Oh, he hurt me, sure enough," urged the negro. "He caught me on the bone behind the ear."

A medical student standing near volunteered the information that Johnson was struck on the mastoid process. The occasion, therefore, ranks in importance with the events in which the ulna and the os magnum figured.

Possibly if Johnson had been dumped harder he would have fallen more gracefully and would not have flashed his golden grin. When Ketchel went down he dropped like a soldier whose heart had been cleft by a sword thrust. Johnson fell like a clown, and it is little wonder that the busybodies around the ring scorn saying that the knockdown was bogus.

All But One Player on Harvard Five Ill

Harvard's basketball team is in poor shape for its game with Dartmouth Saturday night at Hanover. Henry Tyson has joined the sick list, but is expected to start at center. John Paine is the only member of the team not ailing. Coach Wachter now hopes to have Roscoe Fitts in condition to start against Dartmouth. Chase and Miller, second string players, are to fill the guard jobs made vacant through injuries to Captain Tolbert and Henry Feiring.

HENRY FORD IS ONLY BOSTON BOY TO WIN

The championship contest will be held on March 5 and the six-day race March 7 to 13 inclusive.

Rutt has been anxious to come back to America since the war ended, and there is little question that his entry will be a popular one with the fans, for his gritty riding and fair, clean racing made him a big favorite with the local fans, with the exception of Brooklyn.

Their Favorite Sport—and Why

No. 10

BENJAMIN LORING YOUNG, Speaker of the House.

Track games are my favorite sport.

They hold the greatest attraction for me. I find more real fun in them than in any other sport. It should encourage the value of cooperation to all things, including sports, but it should be said that no contest is comparable to the track games in the opportunity they afford for individual initiative.

A man is in there on his own merits. His speed, strength, heart and intuition decide the test. It offers a greater opportunity for development of man's ambition for sport and exercise. The big man can go into the "weights," the smaller fellow into running, jumping or hurdling.

The sport I like best to watch is ice hockey. No other game requires the quickness, the alertness of mind and body as played by the collegeo, it is a hard, fast and clean game.

THE PASSIONATE PILGRIM By SAMUEL MERWIN

The Most Gripping of Samuel Merwin's Serials, Made Into One of the Cosmopolitan Productions' Superlative Photo Plays, Is Now Being Shown in the Leading Motion Picture Theatres

Don't Fail to See It!

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

HENRY LAVERELL, famous young writer, serves six months in jail for "obstructing justice" in connection with the murder of his mother-in-law. His wife dies and when he is released he disappears, taking the name of

HUGH STAFFORD. Several years later he finds employment on a Western newspaper, where he is recognized by

MARGIE DAW, a reporter. She tells

MR. HITT, who has charge of the reference room at the paper. Mr. Hitt reads up on the history of Claverly and advises his record as a writer. Then he signs and prepares to study the life of "James M. Cantley," whose family are considering having a biography written. Miss Daw takes a curious interest in Calverly and tries to draw him out, but with scant success. He is still thoroughly in the dumps when he receives a visit from his old close friend and former partner,

HUMPHREY WALSH, who takes his assumed name and address for future reference. Henry returns to his boarding house and finds a young lady boarder,

MARY MALONEY, sitting on the steps. Under the spell of the moonlight he kisses her hand, the first human thing he has done in four years. At today's installment opens, Henry is sitting in the office watching Margie Daw write a story.

SHE talked with utter ease, smiling a little, very kind, and practical. Indeed, her logic was difficult to meet out of a tired, emotion-clouded mind.

"You're living in a boarding-house, I take it."

He bowed.

"Heavily gamed! I'd die first"

"I know. But what can you do?"

She waved her cigarette about the room.

"This. You can't do better than down or right a week, at best."

"Right!"

"Then there's car fares, and the awful wear and tear."

"I know."

"You can pick up something pretty good here in this building. Eat as you like. You're independent. And you don't have to pay for meals you aren't there to eat."

"I know. That's bothered me some. I was thinking I'd go out there for supper tonight. You see, it's been a good deal, paying out there and eating down-town."

"I'd offer to put you up here until you—"

"Oh, no! I wouldn't put you to that trouble."

"—but I simply haven't got room. Just one bedroom, and this little cozy, and bathroom. I keep a tin refrigerator and alcohol stove in there. It's crowded, but at least it's not a boarding-house."

Henry tried to consider the apartment idea calmly, practically, tried to imagine this extraordinary Miss Daw as the frank, bright young fellow she sometimes she seemed. This effort was unsuccessful. His temples were pounding. It hadn't occurred to him that a woman could hold a cigarette so gracefully.

He thought, as from a distance, of Mary Maloney. It might solve that problem. Though this . . .

He heard her saying—

"You'd better stretch out here and get some sleep. I'll call up about half past seven and see if you're able to go to the theater."

"Oh, yes, surely—"

"If you're not, I'll manage to cover it, one way or the other. So don't worry. You can stay here tonight, if you think you could be comfortable on the sofa. You certainly won't want to drag yourself out to a Peck Avenue boarding house unless you feel a lot better than this. Help yourself to my books."

It seemed to him, when he tried to reconstruct the picture later in memory, that she stood for a time, after she had pulled down her becoming little felt hat and rubbed out the stub of her cigarette, hands in pockets, studying him with a curiously intent frown. He knew that he got very red, and looked down awkwardly at the bathrobe.

And then, with a smile and a pert wave, triumphant little whip of her head, she left him there.

CHAPTER V.

Emotions In Stasis

FOR a time—half or three-quarters of an hour—Calverly sat, rather uncomfortably, on the edge of the sofa staring at the wall. His mental self was afloat, adrift, on a wide sea of emotion. He was only vaguely aware of the stuffy little apartment, of his own old alpaca office coat and his collar and tie lying across the books on the table. Once or twice he emerged from his reverie, saw again the feminine things about him, glanced down at the strange old bathrobe in which he was wrapped, and dozed. Then, almost at once, he was back in that confused and boundless sea of feeling.

He caught himself muttering aloud. About going to the theatre. This seemed to be what he was really thinking about. He wondered if he was just an ordinary coward.

"What's the difference"—he was muttering again—"if they do recognise me! What can they do? Why, nothing! How can they stop me doing the job I'm sent there to do? They can't. Of course! I've got a right to live, haven't I? Suppose I was a soldier and got sent . . . though that would be easy."

He sprang up, nerves suddenly alert, quivering; tore off the bathrobe. Who did it belong to, anyway? Why was it here in Miss Law's rooms? It wasn't a man's garment . . . Why was he himself here?

Hurriedly, breathless again, really in an odd, shamefaced panic, a complete revulsion, he got collar and tie on, then coat and overcoat. He rushed out, headlong.

He was relieved at getting uptown into the cross streets.

He waited on a corner among a crowd of gum-chewing, giggling shop-girls. He moved away from them.

He hung from a strap in a crowded car, waited again at a transfer station; rode out Peck avenue clinging to the rear step in a tightly packed group of laboring men. They were dirty, and smelled of sweat. The car was dirty. The conductor's reaching hand was dirty. A pall of smoke from the planing mills and the rendering plant and the box factories hung over the gray street.

It was supper time at the boarding-house. He felt people staring at him as he walked through the dingy, dining room. It seemed to him that they must know his secret and all he was going through. How why should they stare so.

As he stepped out into the hall after supper he realized that the piano was going. And pleasant young voices were singing.

He moved slowly, wistfully, past the parlor door.

They saw him. There must have been six or seven girls there altogether. Two or three turned. There was a pause in the song, and some whispering.

Mary Maloney, at the piano, called

"Won't you come in, Mr. Stafford?"

He stood a moment, bit his lip. He told himself that it was absurd to take it so hard. It couldn't hurt anyone for him to go in there and sing a little. He used to love singing. It had been one of his curious group of gifts. But it had been, more recently, the one gift he had most fiercely suppressed. It seemed now, for a moment, that in merely crooning that distressful he would be releasing all the desperately chained forces of life within him. If he were to let himself enjoy one thing, why not another?

And how could he make friends as Hugh Stafford? What would the end be? He had taken his gifts for granted that he didn't want friends.

He went in.

He felt them looking at him in some surprise. One girl giggled outright and turned away in confusion. Mary Maloney hurriedly rummaged among the heaps of songs on the piano top; selected one, quietly asked Henry if he knew it, and struck into the accompaniment.

The girls at once began to sing.

Henry tried his voice, softly at first, even timidly. It came as a surprise that he could still sing after the years. He was in a tremor of self-consciousness about it. Once or twice he caught himself letting out a little, and instantly brought his voice down to a whisper. He knew that the moment he let it go he would become the most conspicuous person in the boarding house. For it was a good voice. And in it was something of the individual quality, the throbbing, even thrilling, power that was inherent in the man. . . . But finally, after three or four songs, he did let it go.

Shortly after this a little gathering broke up. The girls went their several ways of the evening.

Mary Maloney waited, sorting out the music, and Henry saw that it were the most natural thing in the world, left the room at his side.

Out in the dim hall she looked confidently up at him.

"That was splendid," she said. "I love your voice."

He made a deprecatory gesture; but the flush of success was on him —the first small success in four years.

"I have to go to a show tonight" he found himself saying, in an easier tumble of words, "for the paper. At the Century farce. Would you care to go? There's two tickets."

Her eyes opened wide.

"Oh," she murmured—"—why yes, I'd love to. That is, I think—oh yes, it's all right. I did have a sort of half engagement, but if you don't mind stopping at the drug store I can telephone"

"We'd better start pretty soon," he said.

Another Scene From the Great Film Drama

Rev. Mr. Hodder, leaving St. John's, comes upon Mrs. Garvin, who, in despair, has been praying for help for her sick boy, indirectly a victim of the methods of Eldon Parr, Mr. Hodder's richest parishioner.

One of many strikingly appealing scenes from "The Inside of the Cup," the great film drama from the world-famous novel, which is now making an astonishing hit at the Modern and Beacon Theatres.

The Inside of the Cup

"The Inside of the Cup," published here serially by permission of the Macmillan Co., has been made into a motion picture by Cosmopolitan Productions and has been released as a Paramount Artcraft picture. It is now being shown at the Modern and Beacon Theatres.

By Winston Churchill

Author of "Richard Carvel," "The Crisis" and Many Other Novels of World-Wide Popularity

I AM speaking plainly, and I understand the situation thoroughly. You will probably tell me, as others have done, that no one has ever opposed Eldon Parr who has not been crushed. I go in with my eyes wide open, I am willing to be crushed, if necessary. You have come here to warn me, and I appreciate your motive, how I am going to warn you, in all sincerity and friendship. I may be beaten, I may be driven out. But the victory will be mine nevertheless. Eldon Parr and the men who stand with him in the struggle will never recover from the blow I shall give them. I shall leave them crippled because I have the truth on my side, and the truth is irresistible. And they shall not be able to injure me permanently. And you, I regret deeply to say, will be hurt, too. I beg you, for no selfish reason, to consider again the part you intend to play in this affair"

Such was the conviction, such the unlooked-for fire with which the rector spoke that Langmaid was visibly shaken and taken aback in spite of himself.

"Do you mean," he demanded, when he had caught his breath "that you intend to attack us publicly"

"Is that the only punishment you can conceive of?" the rector asked The reproach in his voice was in itself a denial.

"I beg your pardon, Hodder," said the lawyer, quickly. "And I am sure you honestly believe what you say, but—"

"In your heart you, too, believe it, Langmaid. The retribution has already begun. Nevertheless you will go on—for a while" He held out his hand, which Langmaid took mechanically. "I bear you no ill-will. I am sorry that you cannot yet see with sufficient clearness to save yourself."

Langmaid turned and picked up his hat and stick and left the room without another word. The bewildered, wistful look which had replaced the ordinarily benign and cheerful expression haunted Hodder long after the lawyer had gone. It was the look of a man who has somehow lost his consciousness of power.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Vestry Meets

AT nine o'clock that evening Hodder stood alone in the arched vestry room, and the sight of the heavy Gothic chairs ranged about the long table brought up memories of comfortable, genial meetings prolonged by chat and banter. . . . The noise of feet, of subdued voices beside the coat room in the corridor, aroused him. All of the vestry would seem to have arrived at once.

He regarded them with a detached curiosity as they entered, reading them with a new insight. The trace of offhandedness in Mr. Plimpton's former cordiality was not lost upon him—an intimation that his star had set. Mr. Plimpton had seen many breaches healed—had healed many himself. But he had never been known as a champion of lost causes.

"Well, here we are, Mr. Hodder, on the stroke," he remarked. "As a vestry, I think we're entitled to the first prize for promptness. How about it, Everett?"

Everett Constable was silent.

"Good evening, Mr. Hodder," he said. He did not offer to shake hands, as Mr. Plimpton had done, but sat down at the far end of the table. He looked tired and worn; sick, the rector thought. And fell a sudden swelling of compassion for the pompous little man whose fibre was not as tough as that of these other conditions; as Francis Ferguson's, for instance, although his soft hand and pink and white face framed in the black whiskers would seem to belie any fibre whatever.

Gordon Atterbury hemmed and hawed: "Ah, Mr. Hodder" and seated himself beside Mr. Constable. In a chair designed to accommodate a portly bishop. Both of them started nervously as Asa Waring, holding his head high, as a man should who has kept his birthright, went directly to the rector.

"I'm glad to see you, Mr. Hodder" he said, and turning defiantly surveyed the room. There was an awkward silence. Mr. Plimpton raised a little nearer. The decree might have gone forth for Mr. Hodder's destruction, but Asa Waring was a man whose displeasure was not to be lightly incurred

"What's this I hear about you moving out of Hamilton Place, Mr. Waring? You'd better come up and take the Spaulding lot, in Waverley, across from us"

"I am an old man. Mr. Plimpton." Asa Waring replied "I do not move as easily as some other people in these days"

Everett Constable produced his handkerchief and rubbed his nose violently. But Mr. Plimpton was apparently undaunted

"I have always said," he observed "that there was something very fine in your sticking to that neighborhood after your friends had gone. Here Phil!"

Phil Goodrich looked positively belligerent, and as he took his stand on the other side of Hodder his father-in-law smiled at him grimly. Mr. Goodrich took hold of the rector's arm

"I missed one of two meetings last spring, Mr. Hodder," he said, "but I'm going to be on hand after this. My father, I believe, never missed a vestry meeting in his life. Perhaps that was because they used to hold most of 'em at his house."

"And serve port and cigars, I'm told," Mr. Plimpton put in.

"That was an inducement, Wallis, I'll admit," answered Phil. "But there are even greater inducements now"

In view of Phil Goodrich's well-known liking for a fight, this was too pointed to admit of a reply, but Mr. Plimpton was spared the attempt by the entrance of Nelson Langmaid. The lawyer, as he greeted them, seemed to be preoccupied, nor did he seek to relieve the tension with his customary joke. A few moments of silence followed, when Eldon Parr was seen to be standing in the doorway, surveying them

"Good evening gentlemen," he said coldly, and without more ado went to his customary chair, and sat down in it. Immediately followed a scraping of other chairs. There was a dominating quality about the man not to be gainsaid.

The rector called the meeting to order. . . .

During the routine business none of the little asides occurred which produce laughter. Every man in the room was aware of the intensity of Eldon Parr's animosity, and yet he betrayed it neither by voice, look or gesture. There was something uncanny in this self-control, this sang froid with which he was wont to sit at boards waiting unmoved for the time when he should draw his net about his enemies, and strangle them without pity. It got on Langmaid's nerves—hardened as he was to it. He had seen many men in that net; some had struggled, some had taken their annihilation stoically; honest merchants, freebooters, and brigands. Most of them had gone out, with their families, into that precarious borderland of existence in which the to-morrows are ever dreaded.

Yet here, somehow, was a different case. Langmaid found himself going back to the days when his mother had taken him to church, and he could not bear to look at Hodder. Since 6 o'clock that afternoon—had his companions but known it—he had passed through one of the worst periods of his existence. . . .

After the regular business had been disposed of a brief interval was allowed, for the sake of decency, to ensue. That Eldon Parr would not lead the charge in person was a foregone conclusion. Whom, then, would he put forward? For obvious reasons, not Wallis Plimpton or Langmaid, nor Francis Ferguson.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

LIFE is a movie drama, in which the most successful people are the woman who can register indifference, when she is in love, and the man who can register love, when he is indifferent.

Romance is just the froth on the soda water, flirtation just the bubble in the champagne, sentiment just the sparkle in the wine—but what would life be without the froth, the bubble, and the sparkle?

A man is like an ostrich; so long as he can deceive himself he dwells in the happy conviction that no woman on earth can see through him.

A woman's charms may "intoxicate" a man before marriage, but he can no longer claim that she "drove him to drink" afterward, considering what a roundabout and expensive way he has to go to find it.

At seventeen it requires all a girl's energy and self-control to look bored and cynical—when she is having the time of her life.

Nothing makes a man so happy or a woman so miserable as to be loved mildly, sanely and reasonably.

A woman has reached "the age of discretion," not when she knows a lot about life, but when she knows enough not to tell it.

Courtship is a ship which always starts for the Isle of Romance and ends either by being docked in the harbor of matrimony or wrecked on the shoals of disillusionment.

Every man loves a good woman—on theory; an intelligent woman—on principle, and a beautiful woman—on sight.

In the comedy of marriage, the "perfect wife" plays valet, wardrobe woman, scene shifter, background chorus, property man, stage director and "applause from the ushers."

Matrimonial reciprocity: "I'll bet you choose my hats, if you'll let me pick out your stenographer."

When a Girl Marries

By Anne Lisle,

Whose Present Serial Has Scored a Big Popular Success.

Copyright, 1921, by King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"FOR days the market has been none too strong," Jim explained. "A weak sag I thought it just one of the not unusual market uncertainties. I had my holdings and those of our friends well in hand. But there came a day when a rumor was whispered about. It sent the stock down—down—down. That day I began to buy.

"It was natural, inevitable that I should buy. Perhaps it was with this hope that whoever started the rumor agreed it abroad. I had to buy—to protect my holdings, to keep the price of the stock up, to safeguard our friends. I thought I had things well in hand. Under ordinary conditions everything would have been all right. But this circumstance isn't ordinary. It is extraordinary—sinister."

Sweeping his fingers through his hair Jim stopped. I knew that I ought to say something, but what should I say—what could I say? What I ventured was:

"The reason you cut me off so sharply when you phoned me at Dreamwold—the reason you strode into the dining room tonight with such—oh, I understand, dear! You're nervous, overwrought, horribly worried. But don't worry, dear. You've built up this." I indicated the beautiful room in which we sat, the symbol of my Jim's success.

Jim groaned and buried his face in his hands. I sprang to my feet and turned him about to sit upon the couch I had just left. Then I sank upon my knees beside him, put my arms around him and hugged him tight, holding him close to my heart. It was my hope to give him courage.

"Jimmie-boy! Why, Jimmie-boy," I cried. "What you did to bring these things into being you can do to preserve them. Never mind the car. Sell the little car if need be. But you—and perhaps I may help a little, too—can bring everything right again! If you need the money sell all these pretty things."

Everything Mortgaged

"Anne!" Jim's voice shook. "You don't understand! Everything is mortgaged. I had to have money to keep the stock from disaster. Do you understand now? Everything—owned—is—in pawn! I've borrowed to the last thing we possessed."

My voice refused to sound the words I strove to say. But I don't think my body trembled as I held Jim close to me. Somehow I managed to speak

"It was yours to sell, to do with as you wished," I said. "But isn't much of this the result of fear? We have—you have—powerful friends who will lend you all you need. Yes, I know—your pride! But there comes a time in every man's life"

"Don't, Anne." Jim's voice was very gentle. "Even now you don't get the idea. This were just an ordinary thing—if conditions were as they usually are—it might be done as you say. But things aren't straight. Can't you understand? There's something down there in the field that isn't right. Something about our biggest producer that is crooked."

"Please explain," I said, helplessly.

"Listen!" Jim gripped my shoulder and his words tumbled forth, one upon another. "Production has fallen off. The rumor was that I had faked production records to—sell stock. I didn't. Did any one? Or—did—someone tamper with the flow to drive the shares down and ruin me?

"Every one of my friends—every friend you know and love—is caught in this. I pledged our things, sold the car, mortgaged everything to steady the market. I've tried to bull our stock to save them! You and I might face even poverty again without much fear, but how could we—how can I—face those who put their money into this thing of mine, at my suggestion, hoping to win—only to lose?

"I can't! I tell you I can't! there's one thing I can do. It's the only decent, honest thing to do. I'm going to see 'em through. And the only way to do it is to trust that rumor, run down the cause, nail the crookedness at its source."

Jim Makes a Decision

"What are you planning?" I asked, fear close to my own heart now, for Jim's eyes were blazing with a light which boded no good for any man implicated in the deception.

"What am I going to do?" Jim laughed, his hands clenching into my shoulder until I escaped with the pain he didn't realize he was causing. "Why, I'm going down to the field, and I'm going to trace the cause to its source. I'll nail the lie. I'll stop this rotten crookedness. I'll—"

"But, Jim," I cried. "How can you leave when the market—when your stock is still going down?"

"It's stopped. It's steady now. The crowd know they've bled me white, so—they've stopped driving it down. They'll wait. They'll give me time to gather more money—would you believe it?—and then they plan to bleed me again. But they won't get the chance. While they wait I won't be getting money to feed 'em. I'll be on their trail. They won't know it but I'll be fighting 'em on their own ground while they think I'm asleep."

"Take me with you," I begged. "Let me help you, dear."

My "dear Lilac Princess" Jim's voice was more nearly his old dear one than before as he put his arms around me and stared into my eyes. "I don't take you with me. Don't you see, you must remain here to help keep up the deception that I am in town, if that is possible. Besides, my darling, the field I'm going to is no place for you."

"Don't go!" I cried.

"I must go, dear. Can't you—"

At the same moment we became conscious that some one was knocking at the door, perhaps had been rapping for some time.

Thinks She's a Valet

Before my husband goes away
It's the same old story every day
"Come, wife, bring my shoes and rubbers;
Why don't you hop around like others
And wash upon your better half?"
(As if I'd call him that — the calf).
"Now bring my gloves and brush my hat,
And help me with my overcoat."
It's here and there and this and that
Oh! Lord, my husband gets my goat.

Stingiest Person

You Win, James

A lady, while searching for strange flowers in New York State, wandered unknowingly upon the estate of a well-known multi-millionaire and sat down to rest near a small summer house, which she thought was a tea house. The girl in charge, thinking the lady was a guest of the owner, served her some tea and crackers. While she was enjoying her repast the millionaire came up and made himself known, and the lady naturally offered to pay for the food. The man rubbed his hands together and his eyes sparkled as he said, "Well, about thirty-five cents will do."

Southern Fried Chicken

Select a young chicken. Cut up, roll in flour and fry a golden brown in about two tablespoons of lard. Cook with cover on skillet so that it will be well done. Salt and pepper to taste, make gravy by blending tablespoon of flour into boiling water till right consistency. This is the way Kentuckians fry chicken, and it's great.

What Baby Said

In Dear Old Ireland

When I was abroad I made the acquaintance of two little Irish tots, a boy and girl of very humble circumstances. As I had a very pretty box of American chocolates in my possession I presented it to them. The girl quite overwhelmed the oldest child. The youngest was for starting in on the contents immediately, but his sister held his hand and said firmly: "No, Paddy, you're not to eat a bit of it till you say 'Thank you, God,' first."

SCHOOL CAESAR DISTRUSTED BY FR. CORRIGAN

State Encroachment on Rights of Parents a Menace, Says Professor

"Educational Cæsarism threatens American schools" declared Rev. James J. J. Corrigan to a capacity audience of teachers and professional men and women in Boston College Hall, "the less of parental control over the education of the young cannot but work great evil to the future of the country.

"Professional educators," he said, are striving to effect an extention of their power over the child. As a matter of fact, the schools already have got too far away from parental control.

Father Corrigan, in his first lecture since his recovery from an attack of pleurisy, clashed sharply with educational views recently expressed. He contended that "the professional educator is the last man in the world to be entrusted with the uncontrolled education of the young."

PAGAN STATEMENT.

"It was asserted recently in a public educational conference," stated the Boston College professor, "that the State should take children and educate them rather than the parents whose children they accidentally happen to be."

"That statement is communistic and pagan. It shows to what some of our public educators are ready to go in their encroachments upon the indefeasible rights of parents to educate their own children.

"It is time that these professional educators were brought up with a short turn and made to realise that they are responsible to the parents of the children, and do not educate in their own right, but as agents of the parents whose rights in the matter cannot be alienated, transferred or divested.

"Every standard writer on the subject of either law or morals from Bouvier to Chancellor Kent and Blackstone proclaims with one voice that to the parents belongs the duty by the natural law to feed, clothe and educate their own children.

INCREASE CRIMINALITY.

"Parental influence is one of the Almighty's chief agencies for promoting the purity, preservation and happiness of the human race. All history, all philosophy, all the poetry point to the home as the birthplace and nursery of virtue, morality, patriotism and religion.

"Now, more than ever, we need to insist that the schools be kept close to the home, and that the professional educator be dethroned forever from his usurped power over the child.

"They prate of democracy when in reality they are building up an autocratic, communistic school system that would trample upon parents' rights and increase criminality just in proportion as it weakened the influence of the home.

"Home rule and strengthened local control of the schools is the need of the hour. The question of the control of the schools is a question that vitally affects every home in the land."

ETHAN ALLEN COUNCIL CONDEMNS ROWDYISM

Deploring rowdyism at meetings of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, members of the Ethan Allen Council of the organization passed the following resolution at a meeting in Dorchester:

"Whereas, our association is broad enough to gather into its ranks all who believe in the noble principle of liberty and independence, and be it

"Whereas, the only test of fitness for membership is belief in this principle, then be it

"Resolved, that we strongly disapprove anything that smacks of rowdyism or intolerance in whatever form it may take, and we are firmly of the opinion that the object of our association should never be lost sight of."

TAR AND FEATHER VICTIM HELD ON NEW CHARGE

Bennington, Vt., Feb. 10.—As an aftermath to the tarring and feathering of Orville Fiske at East Arlington on the night of January 26 he was arrested today in that town charged with violation of the Vermont White Slave Act. In retaliation for the action of East Arlington townsfolk, Fiske has brought suit for $20,000 against six leading residents, including the postmaster. He will be brought to Bennington to be arraigned in the local court. The specific charge against Fiske is that he enticed Mrs. Harold Blair to leave the State.

"MASTER MIND" OF R. R. THIEVES PLEADS GUILTY

Worcester, Feb. 10.—Pietro Facenda of Uxbridge, called the "master mind" of a gang of railroad thieves, pleaded guilty in the Superior Court. His plea was a surprise because of his attitude since his arrest. He admitted receiving more than $20,000 worth of shoes and cloth stolen from the Uxbridge station of the New Haven road and from the B. & A. station in Charlton. Randolph Guerra of Uxbridge is on trial today before a jury on the charge of receiving hundreds of yards of shirting.

LONGER HOURS FOR RHODE ISLAND MILLS

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 10.—All departments of J. & P. Coates, three manufacturers, will hereafter go on forty-eight hours a week, and a night shift will be started in the shipping department, it is announced. The firm employs 2,500 on day work.

The Woonsocket Chamber of Central Falls announces $50 will be employed in night shifts.

QUINCY WOMAN'S CLUB TO URGE PENDING BILLS

A committee to work for the enactment of the physical training bill and the school nurses' bill now before the Legislature was appointed by the Quincy Woman's Club following an address by the Rev. Lyman V. Rutledge explaining the reasonableness of such health measures in the public schools.

PICTURE NEWS MOTION

Irene Rich, Goldwyn leading lady, and her director, Frank Lloyd, reverse jobs between scenes on Gouverneur Morris' story, "A Tale of Two Worlds." Lloyd does the leading and Irene the directing.

A CAMERA MAN in the movies must be something of an artist and a good deal of a mathematician. Speed of the action in a picture and the lighting, especially, are his greatest problems.

A curious thing about the camera is the fact that if the action is to be slow, the camera man must crank faster, and if it's to be speeded up, he cranks more slowly. It is simple enough, for instance, to get pictures of a train stopping at a station, but nearly impossible to get one to stop between stations. But impossibilities are what the camera man fairly lives for.

When they see the train coming in the distance, they crank at normal speed, that is sixteen pictures in one second. Then as the train comes nearer, they speed up, slowing the action of the train, and if they crank fast enough, they can almost make it come to a full stop!

Sunrises are also practically impossible to get, in order to film one, they photograph a sunset and reverse the action by going a burlesque of a drama.

They take risks, often greater ones than the "stunt" players they film. When scenes are being taken on top of a submarine as he said, "in the cost of living. He was on top of the submarine and had to keep on cranking until the water nearly reached the machine, then, in the words of one of them, "someone rescued the camera with a robe, but the camera-man had to shift for himself!"

Seldom would one of them change his position though, unless it were to become director.

RUSSIAN ART.

WHILE RUSSIA'S political policies may not be popular, there is nothing stale up to her artistic work. Nazimova is planning to make her picture, "Camilla," one of the most remarkable films ever made.

She will bring to it all her Russian subtlety and depth of acting, while Natach Rambova, another Russian, is designing the stage settings and costumes.

One of the theatre settings will be a circular room, while another will be a fireplace built like a huge bowl. From front of the chimney above the mantle will be made of glass, so that one can see the smoke rising.

ACTORS' SALARIES DROP.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN, head of the movie concern of that name, came East after a few weeks' visit to his studios in California, where he has been studying the film outlook.

There will be, he thinks, three immediate changes. More and more time will be spent on making films; convincing stories will replace spectacles; and actors' salaries will drop.

"The salaries will come down," he said, "but the cost of living in the picture will not be less because more time and care will be used."

Mr. Goldwyn is convinced that the public wants better stories. It is unnecessary to drag a circus into each picture!"

CAMERA CLICKS.

WESLEY BARRY is the latest film star to take to the speaking stage. He will appear at the Little Theatre, in Los Angeles, in the production of Booth Tarkington's "Penrod," soon to be staged. It will be his first appearance on the stage.

JOHN EMERSON and Anita Loos are angling for the film rights to "Three Weeks," by Elinor Glyn. They want it for Norma Talmadge.

MURIEL OSTRICHE is coming back to the screen after several years' absence. She will be starred in a special series of features by a new company.

THE REPORT that Lila Lee is engaged to Captain Cleveland Collins has been denied, inasmuch as they have never even met. Miss Lee's mother, Mrs. Apon, sent out word denying the report, and Captain Collins has written his denial.

JOHN GOLDEN sold a half interest in the movie rights of his comedy, "Turn to the Right," for $784,311.83. This breaks the record payment for a picture to date, for Griffith paid $176,000 for the rights to "Way Down East." Winchell Smith, who wrote the play with John E. Hazzard, will write the continuity and help direct it.

ALICE LAKE is another of the famous "bathing beauties" who have reached stardom through Alice Lake.

Metro discovery. Before she made her first picture with that company, supporting Mary Miles in "Blackie's Redemption," she had been "Fatty" Arbuckle's leading lady in slapstick comedies, a year after that joined the Mack Sennett forces.

About six years ago Bert Lytell went to a movie picture in Los Angeles and saw him play a scene during a burlesque of a drama. She was so skilful that he thought she might do the drama itself as well as the burlesque. He spoke of her to the Metro officials and they tried her out in "The Lion's Den" with Lytell and in "Pull of Pay" with Lewis Hamilton, then went back to the comedy field, playing in short subjects for Christie.

When Metro began work on "Lombardi, Ltd.", they wanted someone to play the part of Norah, the little maid. Several players tried out for it, but none of them seemed to quite hit the mark. Then they thought of Alice Lake. She starred in the play the role and made such a deep impression on the public that they wanted to see her starred, and Metro gave her a starring contract for five years.

VOCATIONAL COURSE IN ARMY ENDORSED

General Mark L. Hersey's plan for vocational training under army auspices was strongly urged by Dr. Charles D. Woods, head of agricultural education among the soldiers at Camp Devens in an address at the Union Agricultural banquet at Ford Hall. General Hersey's plan, he said, had been practically suspended on account of the decision of Congress to limit the army to 150,000, although there are about 180 pupils now attending the agricultural school at the camp. Dr. Woods explained, they are enlisted soldiers instead of the country boys whom General Hersey

TO RAISE $10,240,000 FOR RELIEF OF IRELAND

New York, Feb. 10.—The American Committee for Relief in Ireland decided today to raise $10,240,000 to relieve the distress among many destitute and homeless people in Ireland. An appeal signed by members of the executive committee declared the continued devastation in Ireland made the raising of the sum imperative and it is hoped to gather the full amount by the end of March.

New York State's quota is $2,000,000; Massachusetts, $1,500,000; Illinois, $1,000,1000; California, $1,000,000.

CARNIVALS ARE BARRED BY MAYOR OF PITTSFIELD

Pittsfield, Feb. 10.—Mayor M. W. Fitzgerald announced he will allow no traveling carnival companies to operate in Pittsfield this year. His will issue only one moving picture theatre license on each Sunday night.

"I think the city has had enough of questionable amusements," said the Mayor, "and I believe the people are back of me in this policy."

EGGS 45 CENTS AT RETAIL IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Eggs were wholesaling in Chicago today at 31 cents a dozen. Word from St. Louis said eggs sold at 50 cents there. Consumers were buying eggs here today for 45 cents instead of the 65 they paid a week ago.

Butter has dropped also. It is retailing at 46 cents a pound here.

GREENE PREDICTS BRIGHT FUTURE FOR TEXTILES

Lawrence, Feb. 10.—Edwin Farnham Greene of Boston, treasurer of the Pacific Mills and president of the Lockwood Greene Company, speaking at a dinner of mill men here predicted a bright future for the textile world.

MOXIE MAN NEED NOT FEAR GEO. M. COHAN

Actor Will Not Sue Him for Telling World He and "Mary" Drink Beverage

George M. Cohan is not going to sue Frank Archer, the Moxie man, for buying big advertising space to declare that both Cohan and "Mary" drink Moxie.

"Since prohibition, I don't care what I drink," declared Cohan. "Moxie is all right; it has it on Hoffbrau, anyway."

Cohan came to Boston to get his new company started in "Mary." He took courage to bring a new troupe back to Boston after the original company had spent twenty weeks here, but Cohan's middle name is courage.

HAYES SUCCESS, SAYS FROHMAN.

During the recent Actors' Fund Benefit in New York, Daniel Frohman remarked that George M. Cohan was justly entitled to the big financial success he is having this season as he considers Cohan one of our greatest American citizens. The hundred thousand dollar check given to the fund by the American genius was the largest individual donation to the organization, and Mr. Frohman's appreciation on the front page of the theatrical program would even make a Rockefeller feel proud.

When one considers that it was the Yankee Doodle actor's firm intention to retire permanently from theatricals, his successes as a producer on his own account is a remarkable achievement. His four "Mary" companies, "The Saven," of which there are two, one in New York and the other in Chicago, and "The Meanest Man in the World" comprise a string of the big money-makers of the present season. The combined weekly gross of these attractions will easily reach one hundred and thirty thousand dollars.

ONE MILLION IN "MARY."

It is estimated that "Mary" alone will make a profit for Cohan of over a million dollars. Before the season is over he will make at least three more productions. Cohan fully realizes that his mind would not permit his retirement from the general activity of the theatrical business, having been associated with the profession from his early childhood. If the Cohan belief that every person with an act or play in it is kept busy, is likely to get into mischief.

A temperament of this sort usually leans towards a fad, and a man does not wish to make a fad of anything outside of his calling, so he has concluded that to fit in his fad and the shoemaker should do, and continue in the show business for his own amusement.

Would Mean Another Step in Government by Courts

Our friend, Billy Garcelon, acting for the Arkwright Club presumably, has filed a bill which is a very serious step backwards in the relation of the law and the public to our corporations. It would deprive stockholders practically of the right to examine the books of a corporation without permission of the court.

A correspondent points out the evil of Mr. Garcelon's proposal very clearly. We give in substance his criticism:

Chapter 155, Section 22 of the General Laws of Massachusetts provided that a copy of the by-laws and a true record of the stockholders' meetings, together with the stock and transfer book of every Massachusetts corporation, which shall contain a complete list of all stockholders, their residence, and the amount of stock held by each, shall be kept at the office of the corporation in this Commonwealth for the inspection of its stockholders. And upon the refusal of an officer or agent of the corporation, having charge of said books or records, he shall be liable for damages sustained by reason of such refusal or neglect.

This law, in substantially the same form as it now appears upon our statute book, has been in force since 1859, and there is no record of any attempt to amend or change the purpose of the act through that time. The act has been interpreted by numerous decisions of our Supreme Court, and it was recently decided in the case of Shea vs. Nonquitt Spinning Company, that the motive or purpose of a stockholder in making an examination of the stock and transfer book or of the records of a stockholders' meeting was not open to judicial inquiry, but was an absolute right irrespective of such motive or purpose.

Decisions upholding this principle, and statutes similar in form to the one above referred to are in existence in forty-four States of the Union, and the effects of the existence of these statutes have been recognized in text reports on corporate law.

The opponents of the act believe that the accessibility of the books of a corporation by a shareholder was one of the fundamental principles of joint ownership in a concern and the proposed taking away of the right of access to the books of a corporation would result in mismanagement and questionable methods in the conduct of corporations who have placed their securities in the hands of the small New England investor, and result only to the detriment of the stockholders and to the financial advantage of the small group of directors of the concern in question.

Secrecy concerning the management and the ownership of our corporations has been one of the great evils of our corporation history. The reason there is so much more graft in the management of our big corporations than in the government is that there is never any opposition party watching the management, investigating it, ready to criticise it and to oppose it at election, presenting to the stockholders, as the party leaders present to the voters, their criticism of the management of the company.

Now the stockholders do little enough under present circumstances, and if a stockholder had to go to court every time he wanted to examine the books of the company and prove his case to the court he would have to carry a double burden, when the burden of opposing or investigating the management of a great corporation is now almost impossible to bear.

What we want is to facilitate the investigation and the criticism of our corporation management by the stockholders themselves. What we want is to develop a body of stockholders who will really take an interest in their property, pay some attention to whom they are electing as their directors and give some thought to the way their property is being managed by their servants. If the voters as citizens paid as little attention to the public questions and to the conduct of their public officials as the ordinary stockholders pay to the conduct of the company whose stock they own, a democratic government would be a howling farce and would not live ten years.

Stockholders are given a vote for the purpose of its being exercised. They are given a right to examine the books of the company for the purpose of examining them in their own right and not at the discretion of a judge who may have been appointed by the influence of the very directors whose conduct the stockholder wants to investigate. Better far to endure the occasional evil of a captious stockholder who is seeking trouble for trouble's sake than to compel an honest stockholder to drag his suspicions before a court and there be gagged and bound.

We are burdening our courts altogether too much with responsibility for the conduct of our government. This burden we put on the courts, plus the responsibilities which they have arrogated to themselves, without right, is gradually converting us into a government by the courts, and we know no worse form of government than that would be if it is ever completely established.

Teachers Should Encourage Backward Pupils

At the dinner which the Boston Principals' Association gave the other day to the School Committee, Miss Frances G. Curtis delivered a talk on the history of education from the earliest recorded times. In the course of it she expressed the opinion that the public school should develop character in the average child rather than afford an arena for the few precocious children.

We wish that Miss Curtis' discussion of this important subject had been more fully reported. While it is not a novel idea, it is interesting and important, and always will be interesting and important until the idea has been adopted generally and put into efficient practice in all our public schools.

There is too much honoring by the teachers of the best scholars. It is natural, but it is wrong. As Miss Curtis appears to believe, unusual scholarship in children is often the flower of mere precocity —a forced plant that decays early and never reaches the height or the vigor of the slower growing plant. This exceptional scholarship may or may not be a portent of great success in later years. And low marks may or may not indicate an indifferent future career.

It is not by any means clear that low marks and failure in life when they are found to follow each other are products of the same cause, namely, a dull mind. They may be cause and effect, and be entirely unrelated to mental calibre. If, for some reason apart from limited intellect, a child gets low marks and lacks the egotism and optimism which carry so many youths over successive failures, and if the teachers make much of the good scholars and encourage the belief in the classroom, as too many of them do, that the good scholars succeed and the poor ones fail in life, the child will lose all that confidence in himself which stimulates ambition and carries him over difficulties. He will fail, for he will refuse a hurdle, not because he can't make it, but because he will think he can't make it.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Joys of Country Life

By S. E. KISER

"YOU city folks," said Silus Greene, "in some respects are kind o' queer.
You're always sayin' how serene life is for us who live out here;
You speak about the peacefulness and independence and the charm
That keeps us happy, more or less, who dig a livin' from the farm.

"A MAN was out here yesterday that drove a big, fast-goin' car;
He stopped a little while to say how lucky all us farmers are.
'There's few,' says he, 'out here that seem to realize their lucky state;
It's better to have peaceful dreams than tryin' to be rich and great.

"'YOU'VE got some money saved, no doubt,' says he, 'and so are free from care.'
I told him that I'd got about enough to fix me purty fair.
'My friend,' says he, 'you ought to thank the good Lord for the luck you've had;
With health and money in the bank, you've every reason to be glad.'

"I S'POSE you ain't quite broke,' says I.
He shook his head and answered, 'No;
I've millions, which I'll not deny; there's more in life than money, though,
For as I look around me here and see the blessin's you possess
The riches that are mine appear to shrivel into nothingness."

"'I'D sell this place,' I told him then; 'I'd take ten thousand—mebby nine;
So here's your chance; just tell me when—
I'll take a house in town for mine.'
'Hold on a bit, my friend,' says he; 'I wouldn't think of livin' here—
Not even if you offered me ten times the price you ask—per year!' "

Soldiers Eaten by Savages

THE black cannibals of Hayti have been eating American soldiers—not because they were hungry, for these savages do not eat human flesh as a steady diet, but because of their religion.

They have been eating white men because they believed that in this way they would absorb those qualities which have made the white man the ruler of the world.

These facts have just been made public through the Naval Board of Inquiry, held at Port-au-Prince, San Domingo, to investigate the conduct of the United States Marine Corps in their occupation of Hayti.

It had been charged that the marines were harsh in their treatment of the natives. They came back with the testimony that the marines were obliged to be harsh —or else appear as the piece de resistance at a native banquet. But the most interesting part of the testimony was that which dwelt with the religious aspect of the Haytians' cannibalism—the story of the horrible Voodoo rites which accompany these human sacrifices.

A description of this savage religion and the murderous excesses to which it drives its devotees appears in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser next Sunday.

Did Sinbad the Sailor really see a roc—a gigantic bird which picked him up and carried him from the Valley of the Diamonds? Perhaps, for scientists have just discovered the bones of a gigantic bird which might easily have carried the Arabian Nights hero anywhere it pleased. Its wing spread was slightly longer than a trolley car. The Rocky Mountains appear to have been its favorite nesting place. Read of this prehistoric bird, large enough to have furnished Christmas dinners to an entire State, in the Magazine Section.

Audrey Munson's revelations of the little-known life of a model in the artists' studios of New York continue this week with an interesting description of the famous "Mecca Ball," where a young lady, garbed in a wisp of black net, danced as Aphrodite. She tells more of her experiences as the Queen of the Studios. Those who have enjoyed the previous instalments of this feature will not care to miss next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By K. C. B.

SHE WAS short.
AND VERY blonde.
AND SO far as I could see.
SHE HADN'T any ears.
AND HER eyebrows.
WERE PERFECT curves.
AND HER nose.
WAS VERY white.
AND HER cheeks.
WERE VERY red.
AND ALTOGETHER.
SHE LOOKED to me.
AS THOUGH she'd made up.
IN A hall room.
WITH A dim light.
AND THE skirt she wore.
WAS SHORT.
AND HER stockings.
WERE THIN.
AND HER shoes.
WERE LOW.
AND FROM her knees.
TO HER neck.
SHE WAS wrapped up.
IN A heavy coat.
AND SHE was waiting.
TO MEET a train.
AND SHE was nervous.

AND I played a game.
OF GUESSING.
WHO IT was.
SHE WAS going to meet.
AND GAVE it up.
AND FORGOT about her.
UNTIL THE man.
CALLED OUT the train.
ON TRACK eleven.
AND WE hurried over.
AND WAITED.
AND JUST at the moment.
I WAS kissing.
MY WIFE'S cousin.
I SAW the blonde.
GRAB A little old woman.
WITH WHITE hair.
AND COUNTRY clothes.
AND HUG her tight.
AND KISS her.
AND THEY both cried.
THEY WERE so happy.
AND I wanted to go over.
AND SHAKE hands with them.
BUT I didn't know them.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

WHEN I shall meet God's generous dispensers
Of all the riches in the heavenly store,
Those lesser gods who act as recompensers
For loneliness and loss upon this shore,
Methinks abashed, and somewhat hesitating,
My soul its wish and longing will declare,
Lest they reply, "There are no bounties waiting;
We gave on earth your portion and your share."

Then shall I answer: "Yea, I do remember
The many blessings to my life allowed.
My June was always longer than December;
My sun was always mightier than my cloud.
My joy was ever deeper than my sorrow,
My gain was ever greater than my loss;
My yesterday seemed less than my tomorrow,
The crown looked always larger than the cross.

"I have known love in all its radiant splendor;
It shone upon my pathway to the end.
I trod no road that did not bloom with tender
And fragrant blossoms planted by some friend.
And those material things we call successes,
In modest measure crowned my earthly lot.
Yet was there one sweet happiness that blesses
The life of woman, which to me came not.

"I knew the hope of motherhood. A season
I felt a fluttering heart beat 'neath my own.
A little cry—then silence. For this reason
I dare to you my only wish make known.
The babe who grew to angelhood in heaven
I never watched unfold from child to man,
And so I ask that unto me be given
That motherhood which was God's primal plan.

"All womankind he meant to share its glories:
He meant us all to nurse our babes to rest,
To croon them songs, and tell them sleepy stories,
Else why the wonder of a woman's breast?
He must provide for all earth's cheated mothers
In his vast heavens of shining sphere on sphere.
And with my son there must be many others,
My spirit children, who will claim me here.

"Fair creatures by my loving thoughts created,
Too finely fashioned for a mortal birth,
Between the borders of two worlds they waited
Until they saw my spirit leave the earth,
In God's great nursery they must be thronging
To welcome me with many an infant wile.
Now let me go and satisfy this longing
To mother children for a little while."

Soldiers in the Hospitals; What They Read

By E. Kathleen Jones,

Formerly in charge of the American Library Association War Hospital Service in Massachusetts

SUPPOSE you were a crippled soldier, wounded, gassed or otherwise incapacitated in the service. Suppose you had been in a hospital—probably several hospitals—for a couple of years trying to get well. The process is pretty slow and the days and the weeks and the months drag by pretty monotonously. You find yourself feeling neglected, forgotten, defrauded, and you get bitter if you aren't careful. Perhaps you are in a good deal of pain at times; at any rate, life is not exactly exciting. Under these circumstances what would you want to keep up your courage? Wouldn't it be books and magazines?

The men themselves think so, anyway. Entertainers come and go—so do visitors. Cards and billiards and pool and checkers cannot be played all the time. Lessons consume only a few hours; handicrafts help out considerably. But still there remain hours and hours when nothing is going on or the men are tired and have to rest. Books remain always at hand. They don't tire one, as even the best of friends do sometimes, and if you get a book you don't care for you can lay it aside without hurting its feelings. And always they transport the mind to scenes far away from hospital pain and routine.

What kind of books do the men like? Zane Grey! To a man they demand him, though they also like Rex Beach and Bower and Curwood and Raine and Oppenheim and all other books of Western ranch life, of adventure, of mystery—anything which goes with a rush and is clean and wholesome. Nothing morbid should ever be allowed in a hospital, for there the mind has time to brood over what it reads. In the mental hospitals particularly the library should be carefully censored to be sure that nothing morbid or sensual or gruesome or dealing with suicide or insanity gets into the hands of the patients. Wholesome books in a hospital are a great therapeutic agent; morbid ones are pernicious.

These men will not read Mrs. Humphrey Ward or Marion Crawford or Dickens or Scott or Thackeray or Kipling or any of the leisurely old classics. They do demand Dumas. His stories move rapidly and have a plot. Subtleties of style are, as a rule, lost on them. After all, many of them have had only grammar school education, and, until they arrived in hospital, never read a book in their lives. I suppose fifty men have told me that themselves.

Of course there are exceptions. Occasionally there is a man who declares himself "fed up" with Western stories and demands something else. To such a man at the Polyclinic Hospital in New York the librarian ventured to give one of W. J. Locke's novels. Rather to her surprise, but much to her joy, he liked it and demanded more. One day she said to him, "Why do you like Locke so much?"

The boy hesitated a moment, then said, "I think it is because he is so gentle in his judgments." Which is a fine criticism of Mr. Locke's shrewd and kindly humor.

The men like poetry, too, especially the sailors, but they like the rhythm and swing and lilt and rhyme of Service and Kipling and Masefield and, again, their outdoor setting. They have no use for verslibre.

As to magazines, old ones will not go in the hospitals though they sometimes will on the ships. You see most of these men have been in hospital now for two years or more and they have read the magazines as they came out. Subscriptions to periodicals are much better for them they have something to look forward to each week or month. Here, too, they have very definite ideas of what they want. No "high brow stuff" for them, but story magazines.

While the American Library Association War Service looked out for the libraries in the U. S. Public Health hospitals books and magazines were solicited, new books bought, periodicals subscribed to; there were trained librarians to take books every day to the bed-patients; to borrow special request books from the nearest town or city library; to send collections to small hospitals too remote to be visited regularly. Now all that work has stopped for lack of funds, except at Parker Hill where the librarian remains with what is left of the library (books wear out and get lost and there is no money to replace them.) If the Galvin bill for an appropriation of $100,000 for library service passes the Senate, books and magazines will again be available in these hospitals, but not for four or five months anyway.

Sometime, we hope Massachusetts will follow the lead of Iowa and Minnesota and Nebraska and appoint a State Institution Librarian to see that the inmates of the State hospitals, prisoners and reform schools have well selected and adequate libraries. But until that time comes and until the Galvin bill goes through and the funds are available it will help much if friends will send books and current magazines to the Boston Public Library (or their own town library) for distribution, or will send them directly to their nearest hospital. And please remember that the patients are young men who want romance and adventure!
